MISS JULIA BLAKE

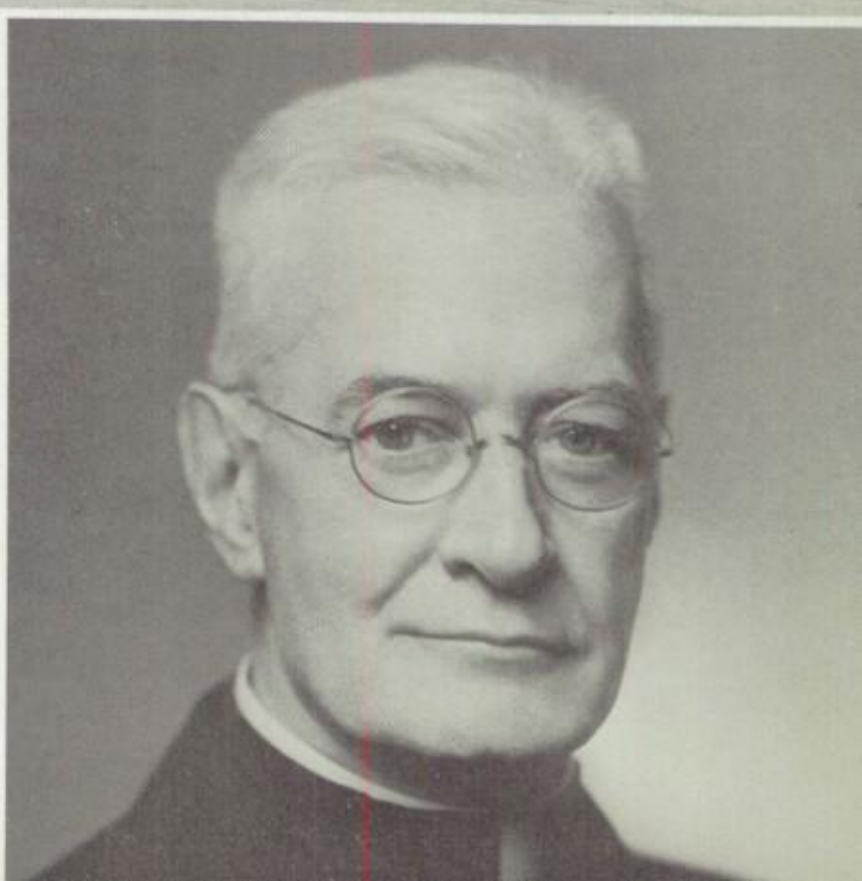

BLAKEFIELD, 1934-1959

CALVERT STREET, 1852-1934

REV. FERDINAND J. WHEELER, S.J.

FOREWORD

We salute Loyola on her silver jubilee at Blakefield. In doing so, we commemorate her traditions which have become a part of our school life. Here, surrounded by the spacious beauty of Blakefield and enjoying the generous facilities of its buildings, the 100-year heritage of Loyola has been shaped anew to these surroundings, and has been passed on to us.

Although each year is shaped considerably by Loyola's traditions: the aims and the core of the curriculum, the spiritual, cultural, and athletic activities, the individual attention to students, yet each year has its own individuality, setting it apart from every other. The persons, the events of 1959 were hers alone. Such events, although changing each year, have always been as much a part of Loyola as her more stable traditions. And so, in our salute to Loyola on her jubilee at Blakefield, we present within these pages a record of the events of 1959.

In these pages we wish, moreover, to honor the individuals responsible for Loyola's new location and the new buildings. In gratitude, therefore, we dedicate this yearbook to Miss Julia Blake, whose wish for better facilities for Loyola, which she shared with all the school's friends, became reality through her own generosity and that of her sisters. We thank also Rev. Ferdinand J. Wheeler, S.J., former President of Loyola, whose determination and prudent choice brought Loyola to her new home. Together with them we salute all those responsible for the establishment and continuing growth of Blakefield.

1934: BLAKEFIELD'S FIRST BUSES

FACULTY

In our commemoration of the Silver Jubilee of Loyola at Blakefield, we present, on the pages introducing each division of the book, some of the highlights of the crowded history of the new school. On this page we list some of the events of general interest.

1931: Rev. Ferdinand J. Wheeler, S.J. ends his search for a new campus for Loyola with the purchase (for $125,000) of Briarfield, 38 acre estate of a former Governor of Maryland, Elihu Jackson.

1933: Ground is broken for the new building in July. The property is renamed Blakefield in honor of the Misses Julia, Harriet, and Mary Blake, whose generosity financed the building as a memorial to their parents, the Late George A. and Harriet Ann Blake.

1934: On September 9 the newly-constructed Library and Science building is blessed and dedicated by Most Rev. John McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore. Present were Governor Ritchie, the Misses Julia and Mary Blake and a large crowd. Classes begin in the new building for the first three years (the Freshmen remaining at Calvert Street). The main residence (Xavier Hall) and the caretaker's house (Regis House) are designated as Faculty Residences. A garage is expanded and used as a cafeteria.

The first Graduation is held June 16, 65 receiving diplomas.

1940: A 12-room addition to the Main Building is completed by Rev. John J. Long, S.J. All classes are now held at Blakefield.

1944: Purchase of new property by Rev. Edward A. Kerr, S.J. doubles area of playing fields.

1949: Famous campus statue of St. Ignatius Loyola, commissioned by Fr. Kerr, is dedicated.

1950: Under Rev. Joseph J. Bluett, S.J. major additions are made to Blakefield's facilities. Regis House is torn down and the new gymnasium constructed. A 26-room addition is made to Xavier Hall. Finally, additional property (behind the gymnasium) is purchased.

1955: Rev. Anthony J. Ziets, S.J., present Rector, completes construction of new classroom building (St. Mary's Hall) and enlarges cafeteria.

1959: Two large additions to the gymnasium are constructed.

140 receive diplomas at Blakefield's 25th Commencement.

THE AUDITORIUM AT CALVERT STREET

1959: THE SENIOR GARDEN

1934: DEDICATION OF BLAKEFIELD'S FIRST BUILDING.

SENIORS

If Loyola has been a successful school, the bulk of the credit must, of course, be given to her teachers.

1934: When the school moved to Blakefield 25 years ago, several of Loyola's present faculty were on the staff. Rev. Joseph M. Kelley, S.J., now in his 48th year of teaching physics, first came to Loyola in 1911. Mr. John F. McAndrew and Mr. George E. Helfrich had come to Loyola in 1921. Mr. McAndrew has taught for 38 years. Mr. Helfrich, who retired last year from teaching and coaching varsity baseball after 37 years, is still Loyola's Treasurer.

As previously noted, Rev. Ferdinand J. Wheeler, S.J. was the Rector who moved Loyola to Blakefield. Rev. Michael A. Clark, S.J. was Principal.

1937: Rev. John J. Long, S.J. and Rev. Anthony Guenther, S.J. become Rector and Principal of Loyola.

Mr. David A. Kennedy, Registrar, begins his teaching career at Loyola. (Mr. Kennedy has taught a wide variety of subjects in his 22 years.)

1938: Rev. John F. Sheridan, S.J. begins his long career at Blakefield. Miss Mary Creaghan, Librarian, comes to Loyola.

1939: Rev. John A. Convery, S.J. becomes Principal.

1940: Jesuit faculty moves to Xavier Hall. Previously they had commuted daily from Calvert Street.

Rev. Edward L. Brennan, S.J. first comes to Loyola.

1943: Rev. Edward A. Kerr, S.J. is appointed Rector.

Rev. William J. Ruppenthal, S.J. comes to Loyola as a Scholastic. Mr. Edward J. Hargaden begins his long teaching and coaching career.

1944: Rev. Gregory G. Kiehne, S.J. joins the faculty.

1946: Mr. John Crimy returns to teach at his alma mater.

1947: Rev. John M. Comey, S.J. succeeds Fr. Convery as Principal.

1948: Rev. J. Joseph Bluett, S.J. becomes Rector.

1949: Henry L. Griffin retires as biology teacher and Hockey coach after 22 years at Loyola.

Jesuit Fathers commute from Calvert Street while construction is under way at Xavier Hall.

1951: Rev. Michael J. Blee, S.J. is appointed Principal.

1954: Rev. Anthony J. Zeits, S.J. becomes Rector.

1958: Rev. T. Donald Rinfret, S.J. returns to Blakefield as Principal. Fr. Wheeler returns as Spiritual Father to the community.

CHEMISTRY LABORATORY AT CALVERT STREET

1959: MR. BRADLEY, S.J. IN AN ENGLISH CLASS.

AN EARLY CLASS AT BLAKEFIELD.

CLASSES

Chief among the traditions the new school inherited from the past were methods and curriculum. These were dictated by the Jesuit philosophy of education, which commits the energies and talents of the teacher to the challenging ideal of educating the whole Christian man. The curriculum placed strong emphasis on the formative subjects of classical and modern languages, and mathematics.

1934: Enrollment: 410.

1936: Spanish is dropped from the curriculum.

One hour of Latin is cut from the schedule of the first two years.

1939: Passing grade raised from 60% to 65%.

Enrollment: 394.

1942: Hereafter Greek students required to take at least one year of science.

1943: Wartime acceleration of courses allows Seniors to graduate in February. Double Latin courses were offered in the Winter, while English, physics, and mathematics were studied in the Summer.

P.T. period during the war years is spent surviving an obstacle (e.g., 7 ft. wall.) course on the campus.

Greek is changed from a three-year course to a two-year course.

1944: No Greek is taught this year!

Pre-Flight Aeronautics taught (until 1946).

Enrollment: 579.

1949: Enrollment: 538.

1953: Passing grade raised to 70%, certifying grade to 80%.

1954: Enrollment: 624.

1956: Advanced Honors Program begun. Advanced courses are eventually introduced in mathematics, chemistry, and German, all covering the equivalent of first year college. English is to be accelerated in 1960.

Ovid is dropped from the Latin curriculum.

1957: Enrollment climbs to 713. At this time only one class in each year studies Greek.

Full-time gym instructor added to faculty.

1958: Enrollment climbs to all-time high (766) for the year 1957-58.

Many people feel that their years in high school are the happiest and shortest years of their lives. The Seniors of 1959, however, will remember their high school days for a special reason. For they are proud of their year, proud of their class, their football team, M.S.A. champions, their scholastic achievements, their teachers; but above all they are proud in the hope that they have left Loyola better than they found her.

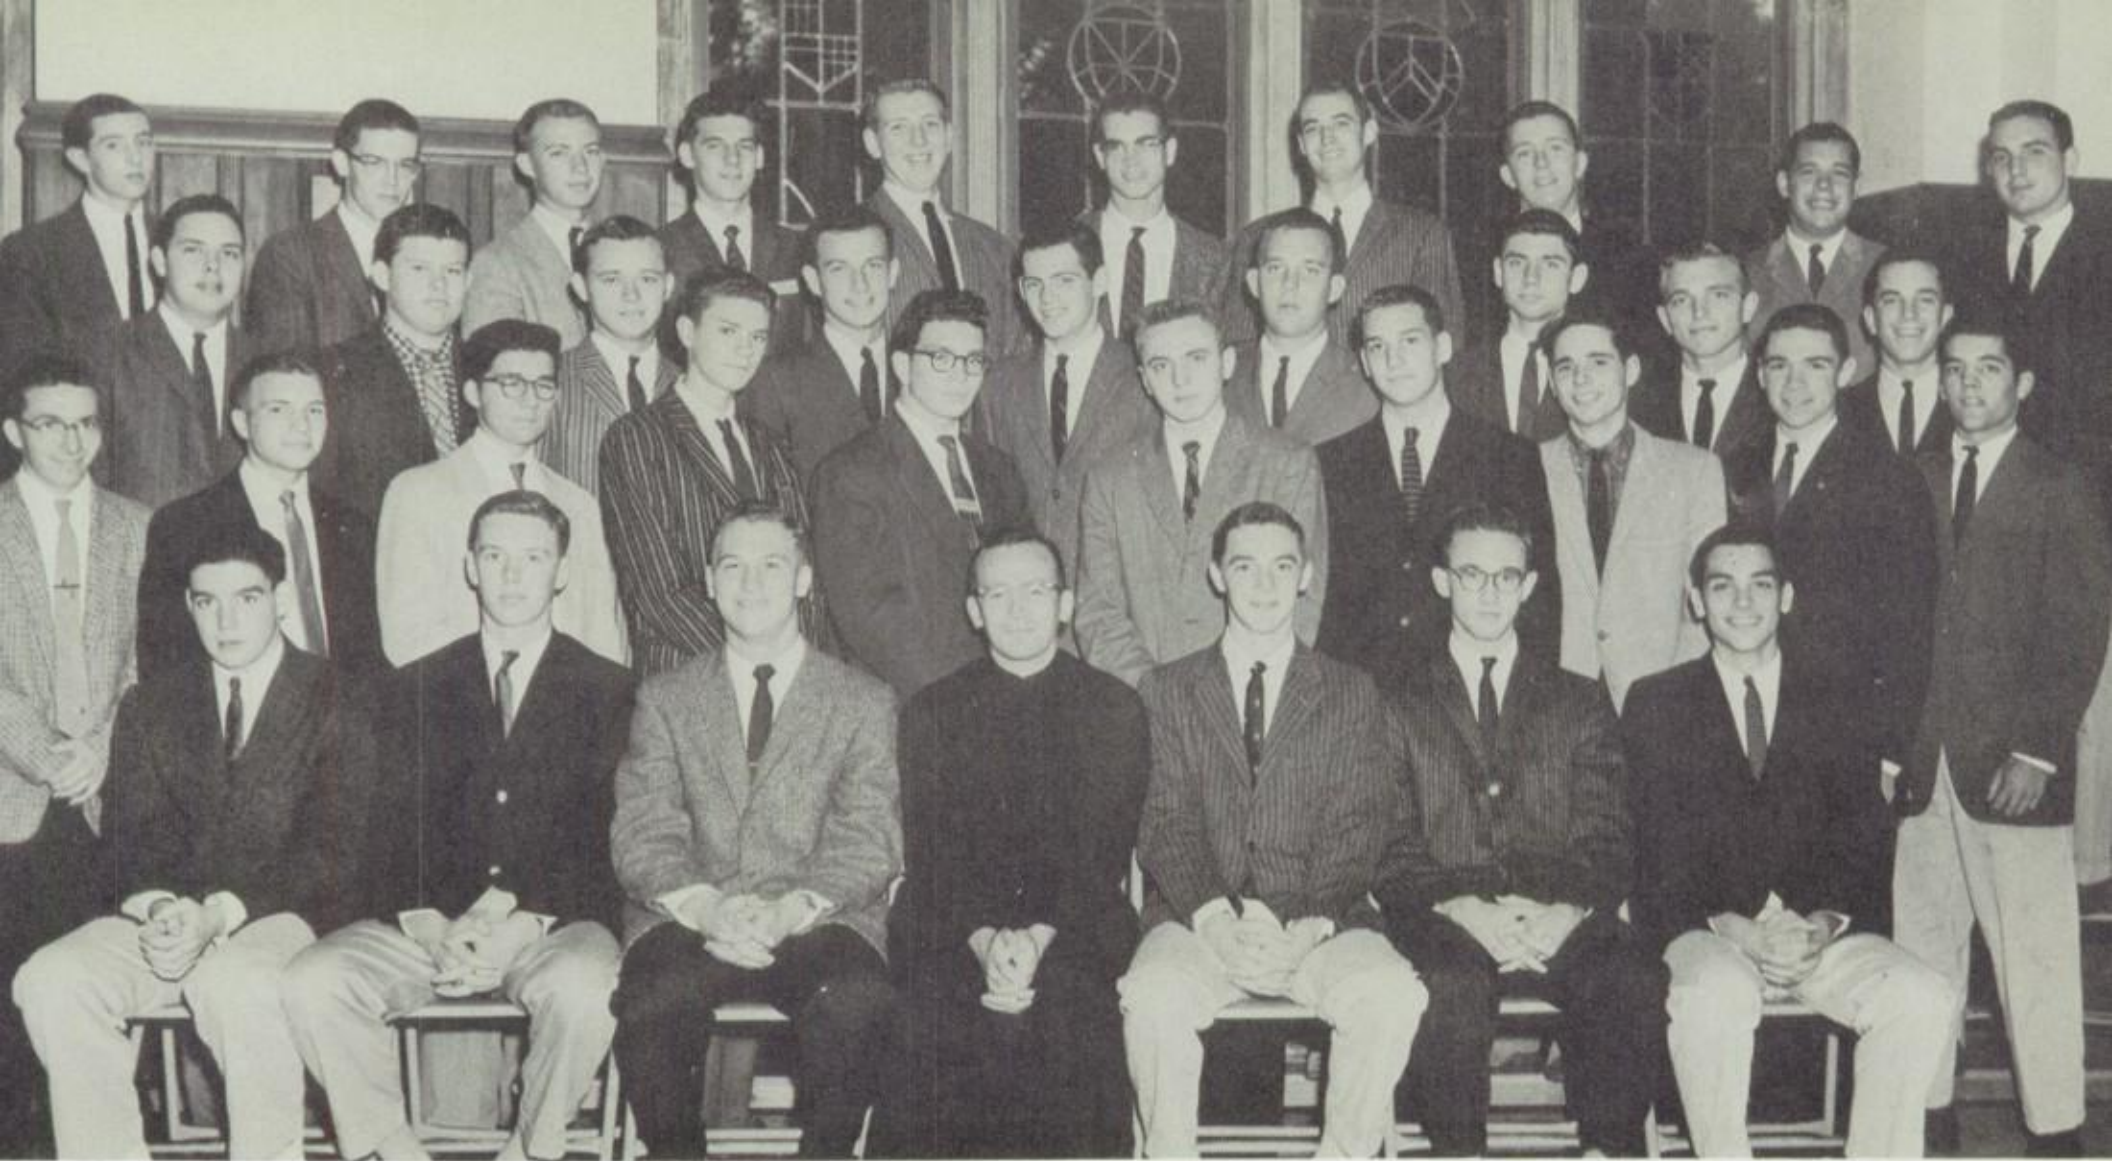

French scholars Farrell, Fahey, Harman, and O'Mara are shown the correct word order by Mr. Murray, S.J.

"It was Din! Din! Din!" bellows Dugan.

4B

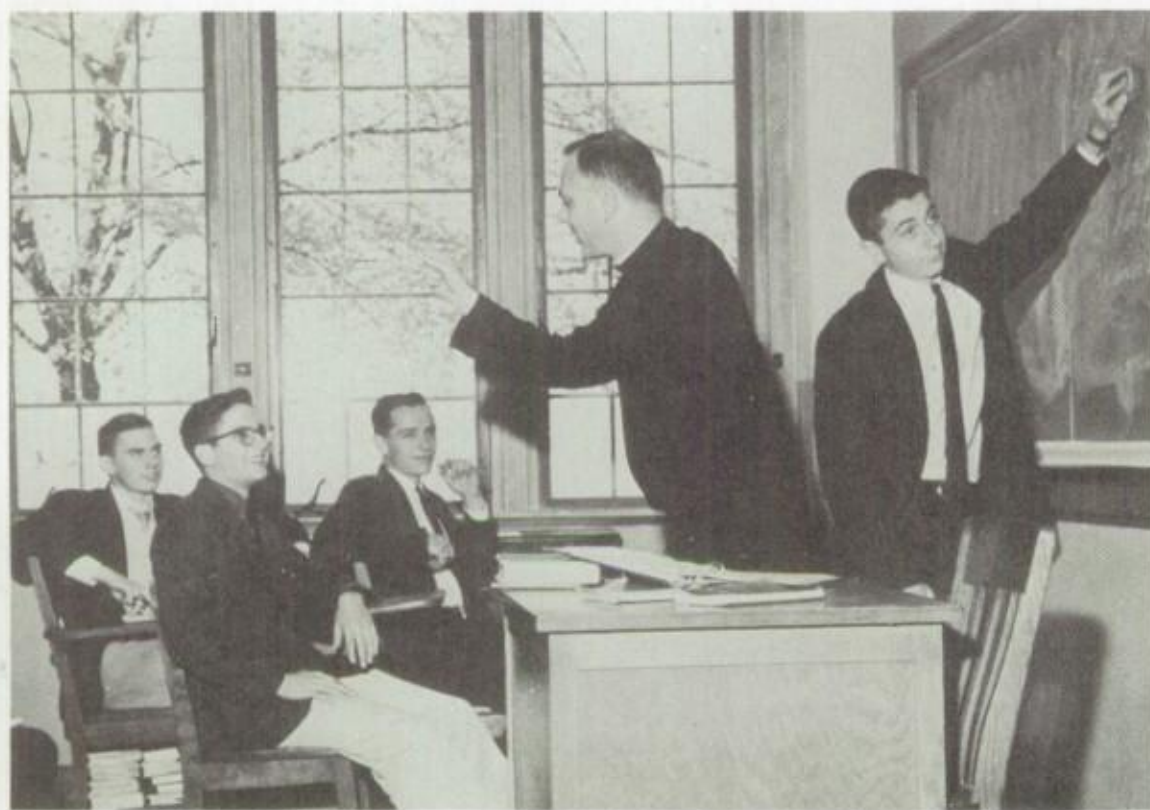

4B fails to respond as Wedekind reads aloud an excerpt from "The Tremolino".

Sheehan, Turk, and Phillips are accomplices to the fact as Allenbaugh, team co-captain, enjoys a well earned smoke.

Fr. Brunett's commentaries on Christian education provide both entertainment and instruction for Pieper, Atkins, and Price, while Hoffman clears the board for more important notes.

4C

Problems in specific gravity force Polumbo to seek the assistance of Mr. Buchness, S.J. Thompson seems to have all the answers.

4D becomes calorie conscious as Fr. Ruppenthal, S.J. explains the difference between a calorie and a British Thermal unit.

The morning seminar comes to order as Welsh, McGuirk, Winkel, O'Donnell, and Chesmore exchange the latest news.

Life at Loyola was not always rah-rah, ha-ha, or M.S.A. banners. In Senior year, for example, there were the hours spent translating Cicero and Virgil in our fourth year of Latin, and in mastering the laws of physics in our third year of science. The cold hours of dusk often found the teams still working and the actors still rehearsing.

The third year in almost every four-year educational institution seems to enjoy the universal reputation of being the hardest, the most difficult year of study. This axiom holds true at Loyola where chemistry, German, French, and — to the less mathematical — geometry, contribute towards making the curriculum a vigorous obstacle course. Ambitious Greek students, who have worked as Sophomores, sometimes find Junior year "almost nice".

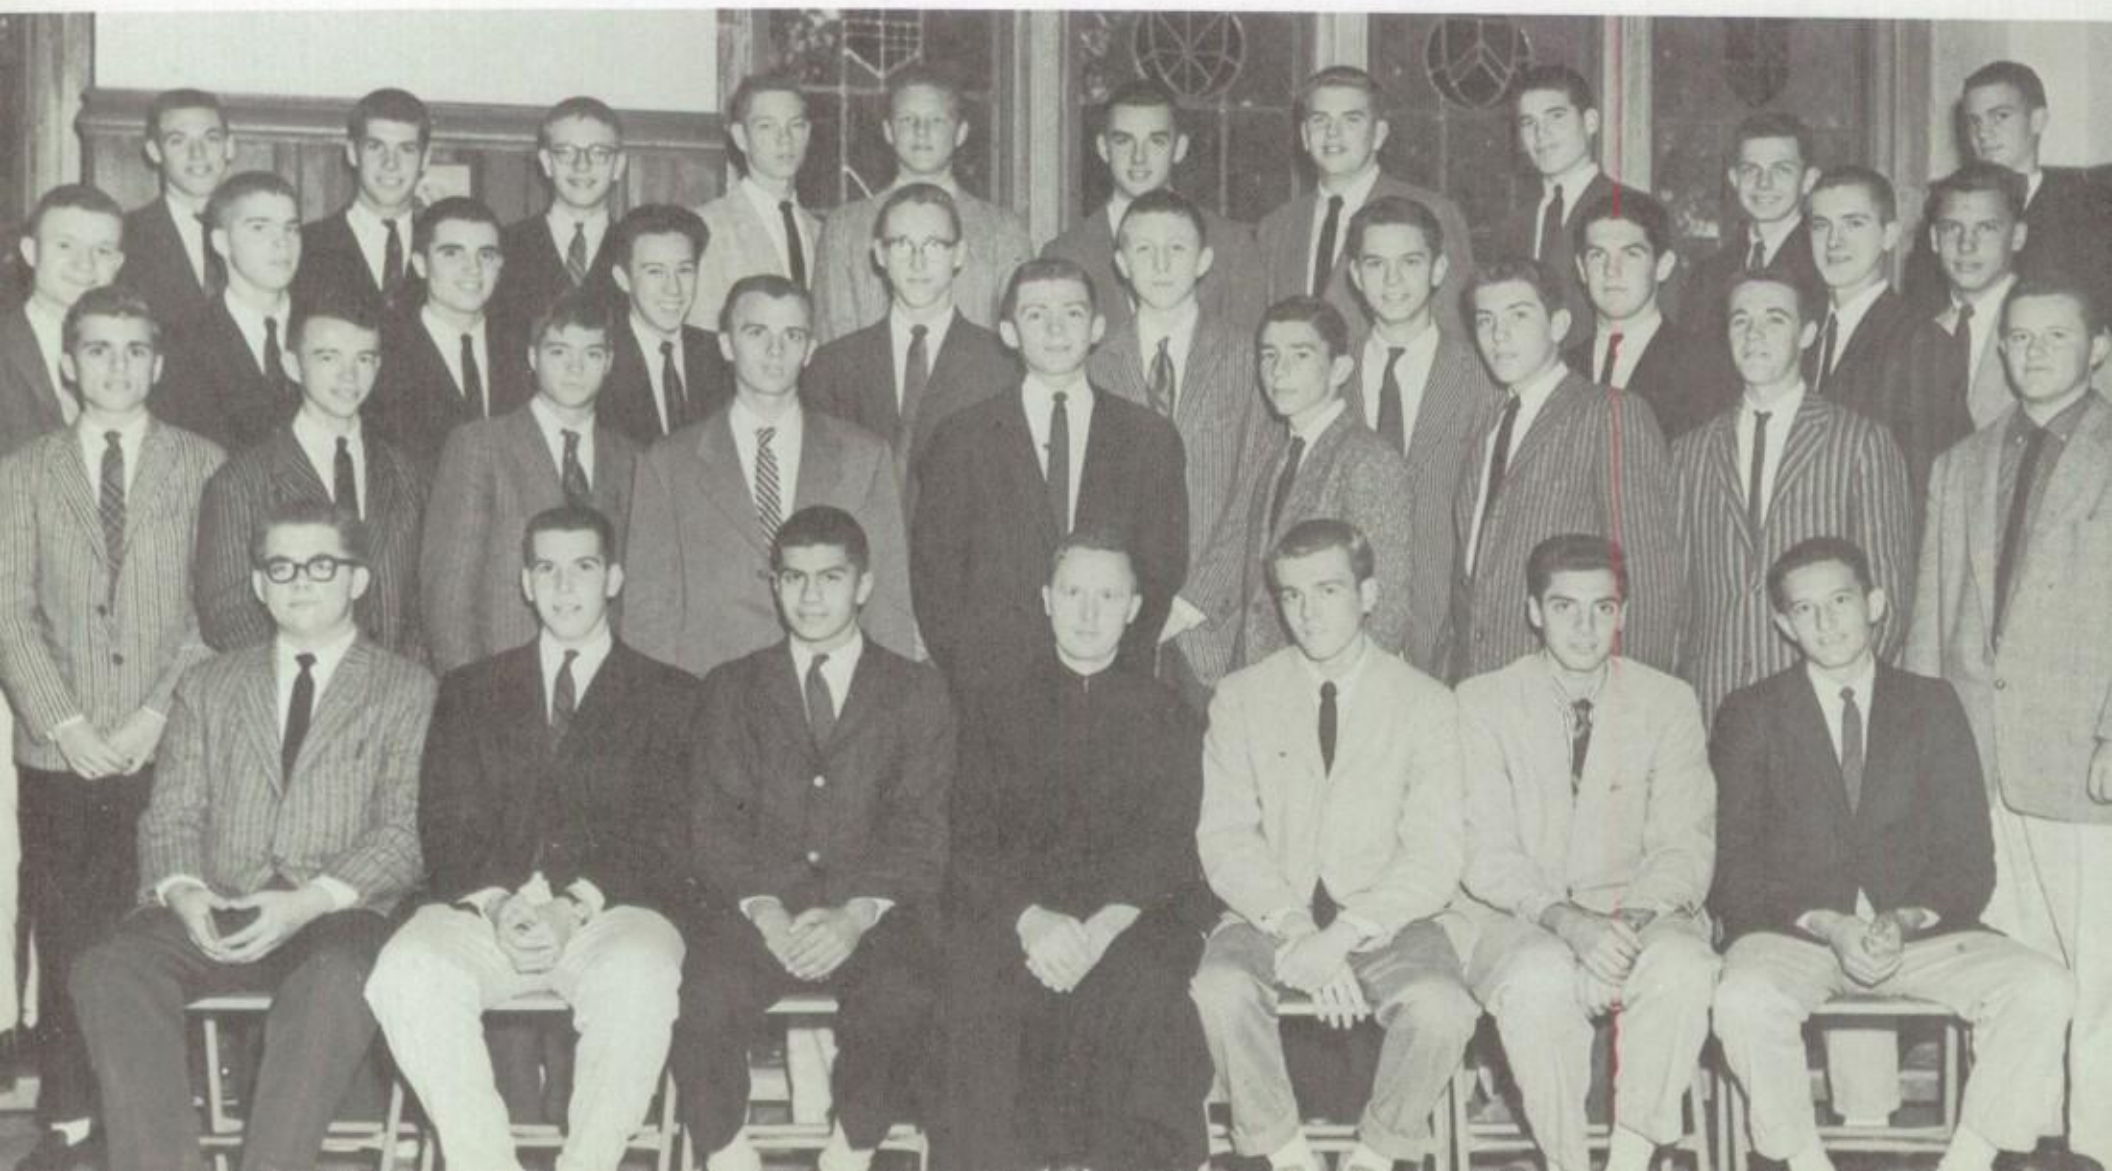

"Self expression is one of the aims of a Jesuit education." Mueller is highly amused while Mr. Keating, S.J. is mildly amused. Melocik? Well . . .

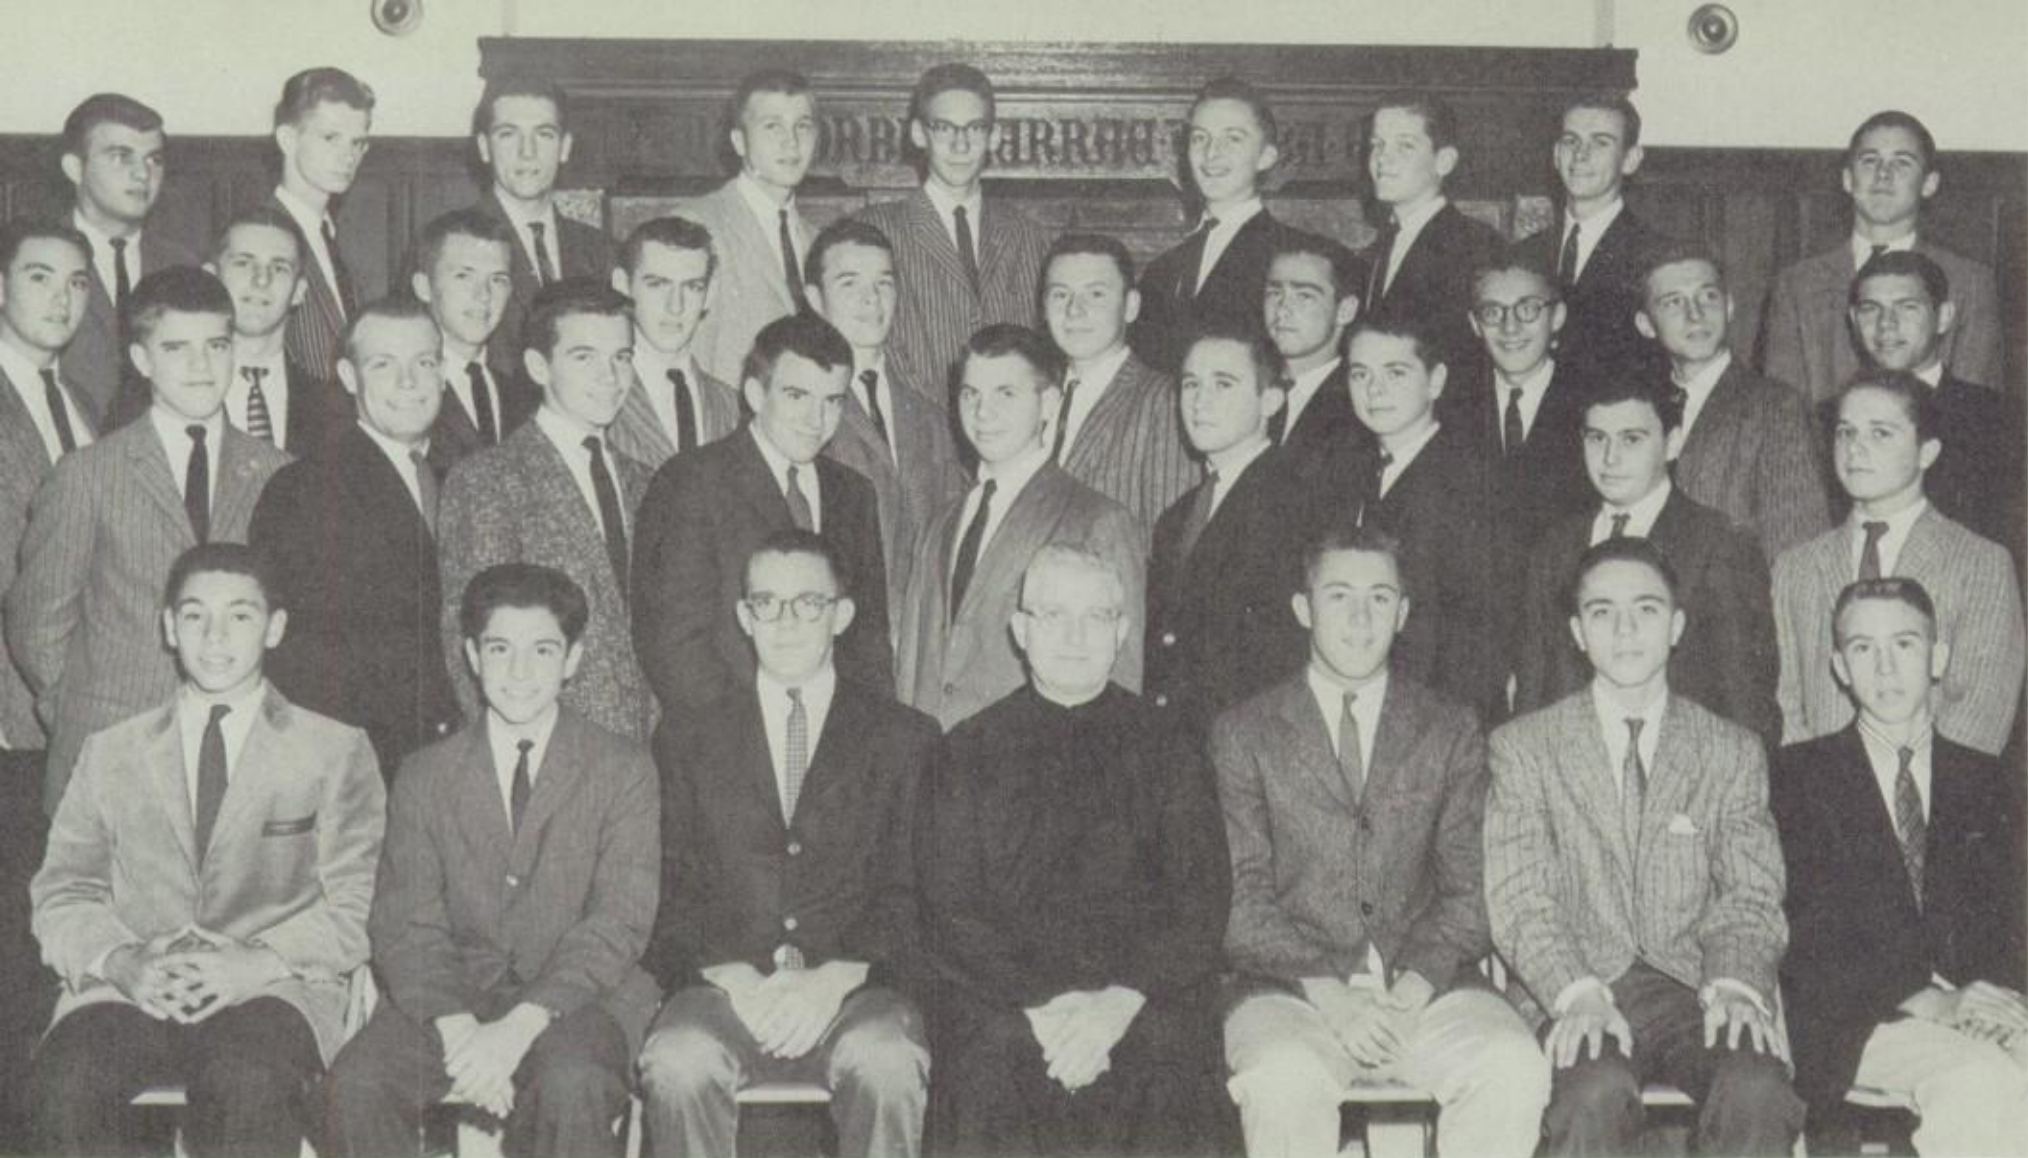

Budzynski explains to Mueller, O'Malley, and Stach that marks aren't everything.

"Casual!" Hofherr, Broderick, Meredith, and DePasquale believe that relaxation is the secret of intellectual success.

Fr. Long, S.J. greets students of 3B with a cherry, "Good morning", as he walks to his office.

1st row: Turner, Kelly, King (Pres.), Fr. As June marks the graduation of another class, the Juniors will assume eagerly the dignity, along with the duties, of Seniors at Loyola. For many this will mean becoming the backbone of Loyola's activities. These men receive special attention from the athletic staff, whose keen foresight already visualizes next year's stars. The Sodality, Dramatic Society, yearbook, and other activities also turn their attention to the leaders of 1960.

Although all of the subjects taught during second year at Loyola are very important, the languages present the greatest change. In English, for example, the student — perhaps for the first time — focuses his attention on the literary, rather than the grammatical, aspect of the language. Much time is spent in the interpretation and appreciation of the ideas involved in great literary works, such as Coleridge's Rime of the Ancient Mariner. Such masterpieces are scrutinized carefully by the students, and then their style is imitated.

School spirit. The Freshmen had heard a lot about the school spirit of Loyola before coming here. What was this mysterious creature called school spirit? The question was quickly answered. The answer was learned while standing around the circle, half frozen, cheering for their team at rallies. School spirit was buying a yearbook and a newspaper. It was selling chances or Christmas cards, coming to plays, joining activities. Soon school spirit became a part of them . . . and they became a part of it.

A PLAY AT CALVERT STREET

ACTIVITIES

Activities: Since the days of the academies in Europe, extra-curricular activities have always held a high place in Jesuit education. Blakefield's first yearbook (1935) lists the following activities: Sodality, Mission Crusade, Yearbook, the Quarterly, Debating, and the Orchestra. Below are some of the highlights of activities:

1935: The first Senior Prom is held at Loyola.

1938: Two new organizations are begun at Loyola: the French Club and the Mothers Club.

1940: The Cardinal Gibbons Debating Society (Our present Junior Debating Society) is formed.

1941: Oliver Twist is performed by Loyola actors, under the direction of Rev. Edward L. Brennan, S.J.

The school Orchestra is reorganized.

1942: Loyola's Dramatic Society produces The Rivals.

1944: The Fathers Club is begun.

A Science Club, under the direction of then-Mr. William Ruppenthal, S.J., is initiated.

1945: A Glee Club is formed.

A Loyola production of Cyrano de Bergerac is performed at the Calvert Street Auditorium.

The Loyolan, a six page newspaper, begins its first year of publication.

1948: A German Club is begun.

Dramatic presentations, formerly held on the Calvert St. stage, are transferred to Blakefield.

1950: Loyola's literary magazine is christened with the new title The Blue and Gold.

1953: A production of Treasure Island is staged by the Dramatics Society.

1957: The school newspaper, The Loyolan, discontinued for many years, is revived.

Herman Melville's Billy Budd is performed under Mr. Leo A. Murray, S.J.

1958: Loyola debaters re-enter the Catholic Forensic League.

For the fourth straight year, Loyola finishes in first place in the Jesuit One-Act Play Contest.

Sodality officers Caruso, Zetlmeisl and Freiert and Fr. Brunett, S.J., ready plans for the Career Conference.

The Sodality Gregorian Choir practices. This choir was organized by Mr. Murray, S.J., to sing the Blake Mass.

Mr. Smith, S.J., addresses the Eucharistic Committee: Michini, Caruso, Mester, Potts.

On Tuesday afternoon, at Blakefield, only one activity meets. The Sodality takes precedence over all activities.

The Sodality is composed of students who desire more actively the ideal of Loyola: the Christ-like man. Therefore, a Sodalist's rule imposes duties: frequently to receive the sacraments, to make daily mental prayer, to work for the good of the Church.

Among the activities sponsored this year were: organizing the annual Career Conference, singing at the Blake Mass, encouraging daily Mass at-tendence.

The Junior-Senior Sodality, directed by Rev. John L. Brunett, S.J., and Mr. Herbert F. Smith, S.J., brought scientists, lawyers, etc. to Blakefield to speak to the Seniors.

Preparation for final reception into the Sodal-ity is the concern of the underclass Sodalitys. Mr. John M. Carboy, S.J., conducted days of recollec-tion as part of the Sophomore's preparation. The Freshmen, directed by Mr. Richard M. Lyons, S.J., mainly studied the Sodality rules.

Mr. Lyons, S.J., chats informally with members of the Junior Sodality: O'Donnel, F. Simms, Kenney, Scheffenacker, Lange.

Pretect Freiert lightens the Senior Sodality meeting with a joke.

Council Assumes Dance Responsibilities

Bill Gately, the president of the Student Council, injects some humor into a meeting as Mr. Murray, S.J., and the class presidents look on approvingly: Torino, Rosier, Giblin, Giangrandi, Doherty, McFadden, J. Sullivan, R. Idzi.

For the Student Council, this was a year of change. Taking over the dances, writing its first constitution, organizing a study hall, and suggesting the formation of a lacrosse team were some of the Council's innovations.

Under the leadership of Mr. Leo A. Murray, S.J., the Council attempts to destroy the notion that it must necessarily be little more than an ornament in a Jesuit school.

More than 150 couples, (many more than usual), appeared at the Council's first endeavor, the Ring Dance. The Varsity Hop drew better than 100 couples despite the snow, and this laughing crowd aided (?) the clean-up committee by seizing the decorations and taking them home for souvenirs.

A committee was formed to write a constitution, which would define more clearly the Council's powers and responsibilities.

Because of student requests, the Council obtained the use of a supervised classroom for morning study hall. The possibility of a lacrosse team also was explored and in the spring a team entered league competition.

Composed of class presidents and presidents of the major organizations, the Council tried to keep in constant touch with the student body. The minutes of each week's meeting were read in every class.

Freiert, McDonnell, Slawski, Scheye chat before the Student Council meeting begins.

Under the supervision of Fr. Rinfret, S.J., Amrein, Gately and McGuirk draw up the Council's constitution.

Members of the Student Council hold a discussion in the library: J. Smith, Kiernan, Farrell, Rusinko, J. O'Keefe, Amrein, S. Christilf, King, P. McGuirk.

Pier 5, a professional band with Jay Leonhart on the bass fiddle, spices the Council's Christmas Show.

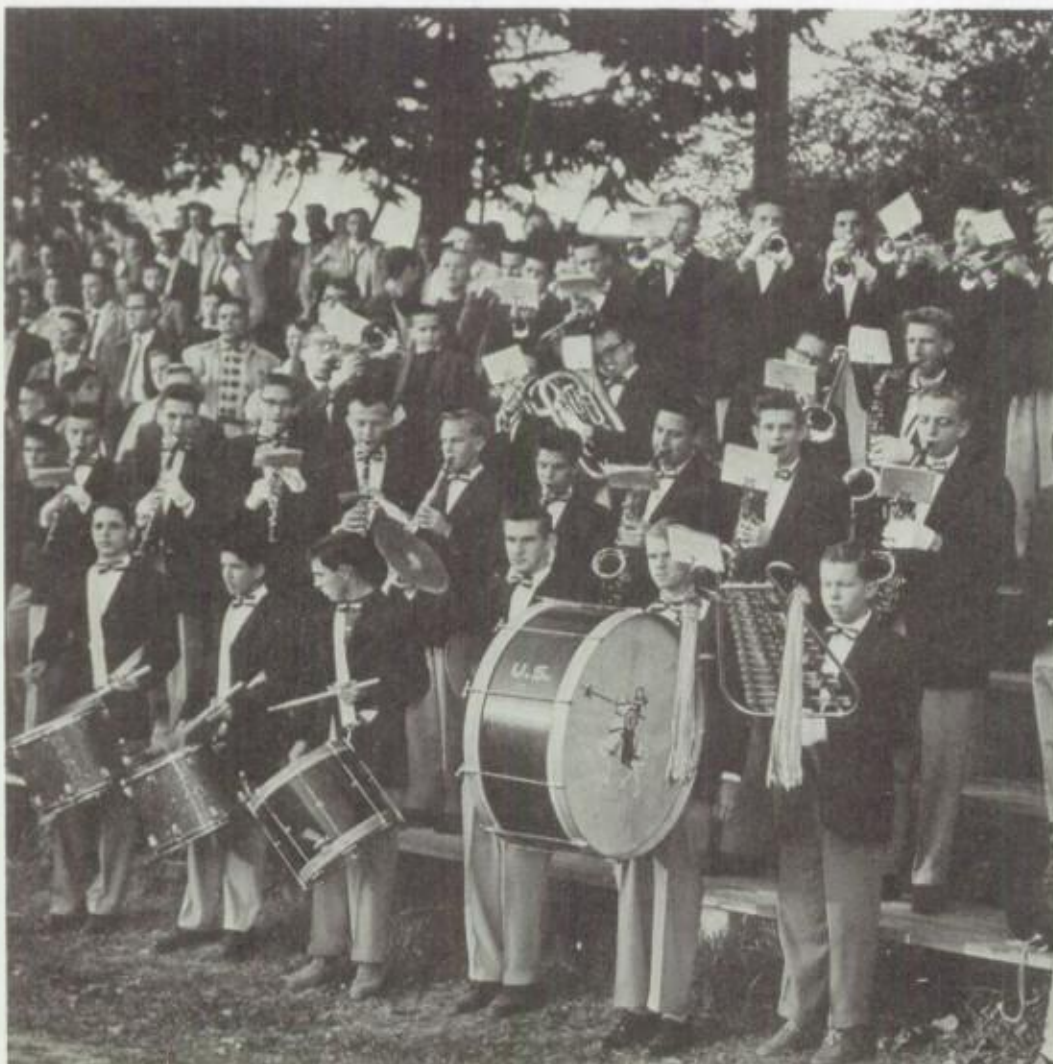

Phillips and Michini help decorate the library for the Christmas Dance.

Mr. Hipp and Mr. McVeigh, S.J., select the music for the annual band concert.

The Dance Band plays at a basketball game: Thompson, Penn, Milan, A. Esposito, Rasel, Melocik (hidden), Phillips.

Another touchdown! We've won! The student body jumps to its feet at the sound of the Victory Song.

At games, rallies and other school functions, the 35 piece band can be heard, jazzing up Jingle Bells or thrashing out When the Dons Go Marching In.

Band activities are climaxed in the annual spring concert, presented to the students in the auditorium.

These appearances demand three to four hours of practice each week. Since Loyola has no music courses, all have to learn as well as practice their instruments outside of school hours, usually on Saturday morning. The library, moreover, resounds with noise and music, two or three days a week.

Mr. John F. McVeigh, S.J. moderates the band and Mr. James G. Hipp directs. Weekly classes were begun for thirteen interested Freshmen.

During football game intermissions, the marching band provided entertainment. The dance band appears at basketball games, playing unusual arrangements of popular songs.

The concert, presented in May, is directed by Mr. McVeigh. This year's program included a mixture of jazz, classical, and show music.

Band Plays At School Activities

Senior Members, Milan, Potts, Bristor, Riley, Phillips, and Penn, organize jam session.

The Band forms an M in the McDonogh Game. The entire band is not shown.

The Band at the spring concert: Reese, J. O'Neill, Dimler, Peters, Potts, Cavacos, Mr. Hipp, W. J. Kowalczyk, Milan, A. Esposito, Bokel, G. Thompson, Penn, Reilly, Seay, Melocik, Chenelle, Ray, Lupton, Moran, Meredith, Kyper, S. Idzi, Petri, Phillips, Al. Esposito, A. Bristor, Hudson, Caracuzzo.

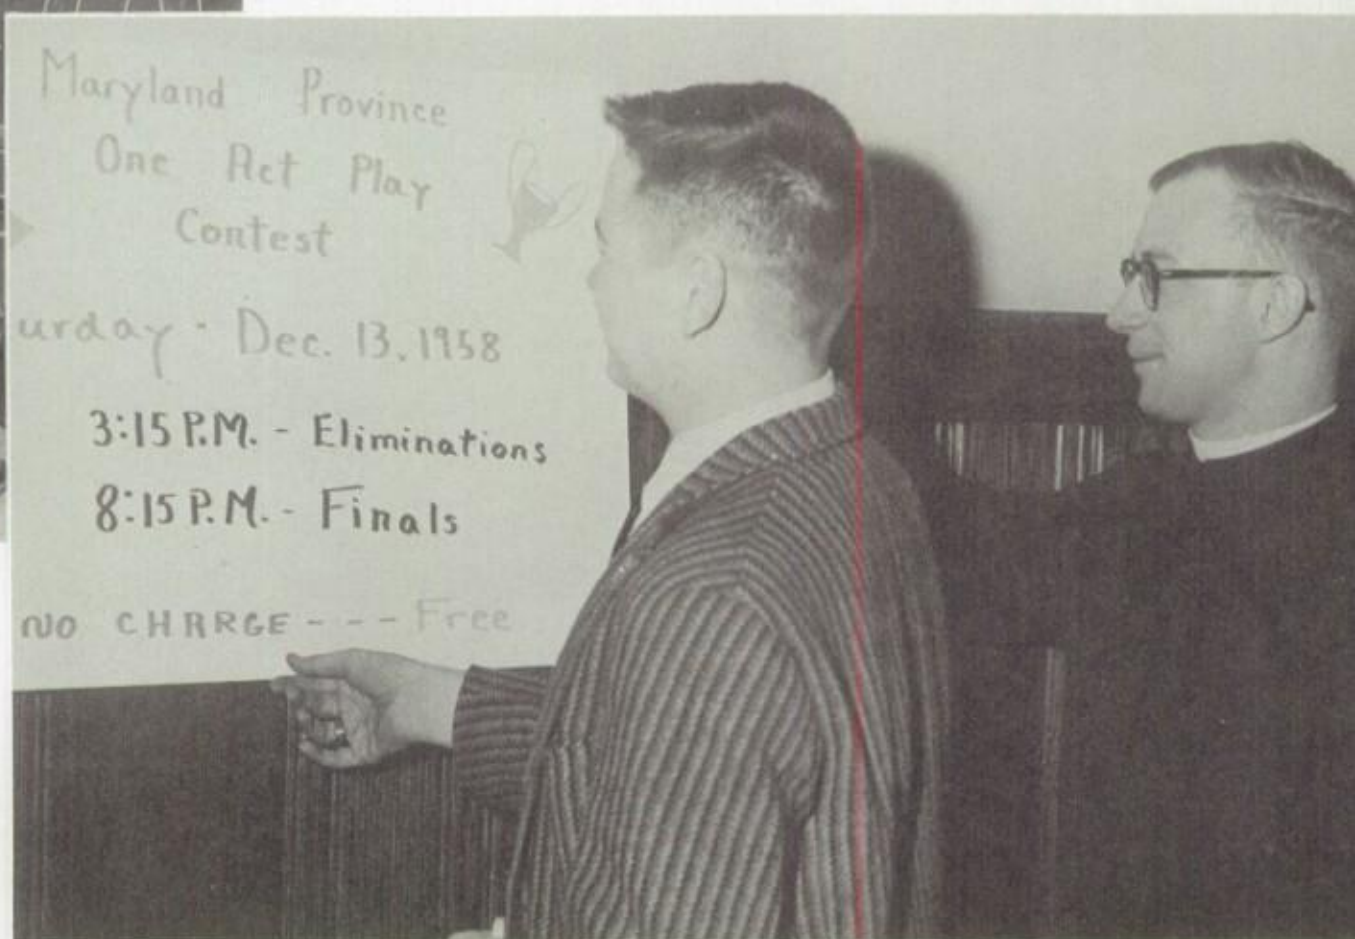

Booster Posters, Rallies Spur Champions

German Club members Dilworth, Lawrence and Montgomery perform at cheer rally.

Chairman Tom O'Donnell diagrams football project for his committee: Hoffman, Fohner, Ireton, Crimier, Doyle, Heimbach, Ryan, O'Donnell, Leonard.

Richard Farrell, president, and Mr. Lyons, S.J., moderator, check Boosters poster.

The Bonfire Rally filled the gym far beyond seating capacity; the car caravan to the Gilman game stretched almost one mile; the student body did not budge during the rain at the City game. These were the headlines about the spirit of Loyola and it was the Boosters Club that worked to see them written.

Moderated by Mr. Richard M. Lyons, S.J., the Boosters Club is distinctive, since its purpose is the greater success of all other organizations. Through its committees, it gives publicity to all sports and activities.

The Poster Committee keeps the walls alive with posters for the football and basketball teams, plays, yearbook suscription drive, mission drives, and dances.

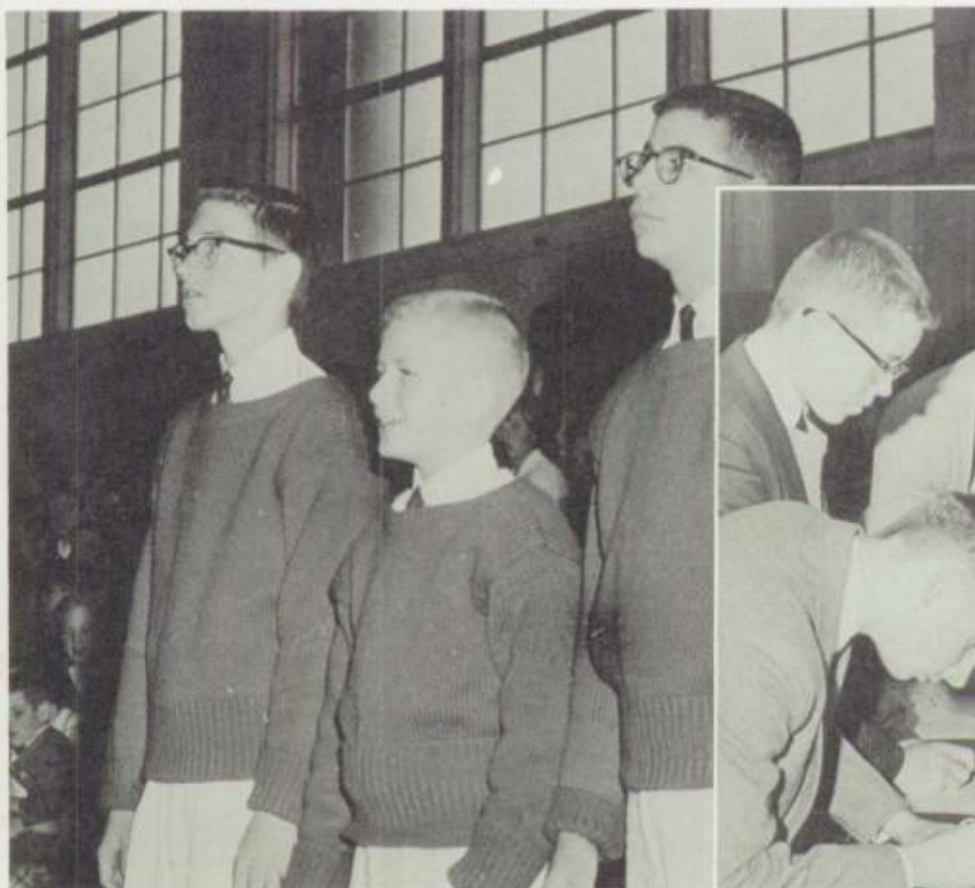

The Project Committee was responsible for the massive Don, which appeared at many games, the banners on the gym and cafeteria, and the M.S.A. sign hung from the tower.

Sponsored by the Skit Committee, the Bonfire rally featured guest speakers, a skit, Corralin' the Cards, and was climaxed by the 20 ft. flames of the bonfire.

Cheerleaders Doherty, Vondersmith and Travieso wait to begin at basketball game.

Over 100 pictures taken and processed by the Camera Club appeared in Loyola's publications, this year. The yearbook used 70, the newspaper and magazine nearly 35.

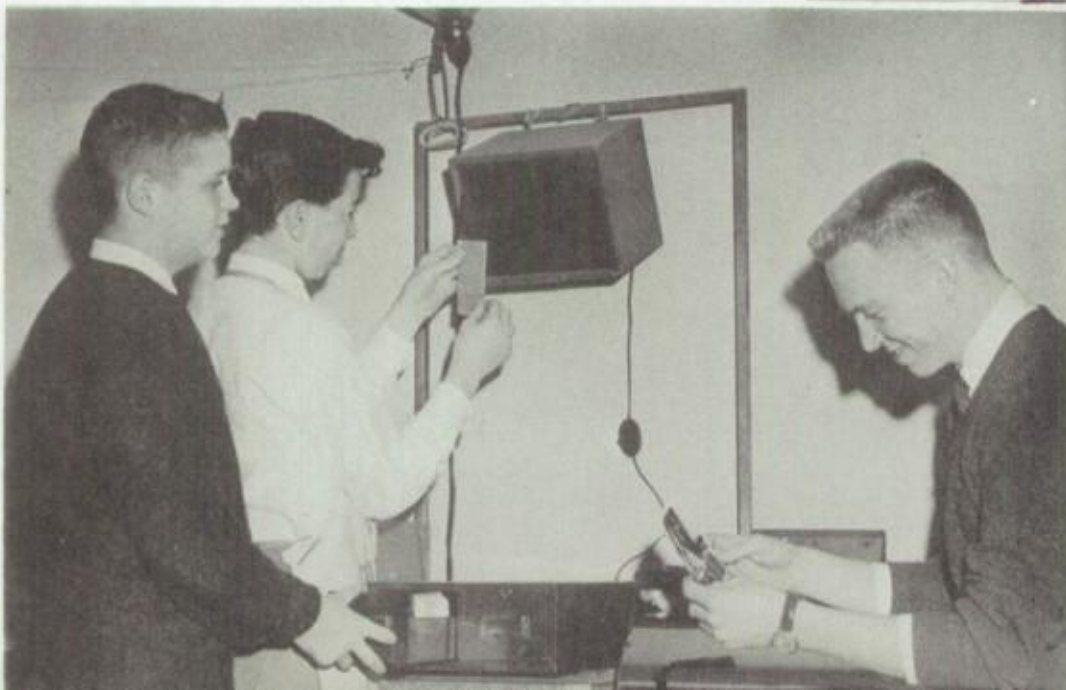

Supervised and instructed by Mr. Thomas J. Bradley, S.J., the shutter-bugs of the school meet almost daily in the fully-equipped darkroom in the tower. The number of members permitted crews to be assigned for each day of the week.

The student photographer whose work appeared most often was Bob Dilworth of 3E.

Mr. Bradley, S.J. shows Brown how to develop prints in the darkroom.

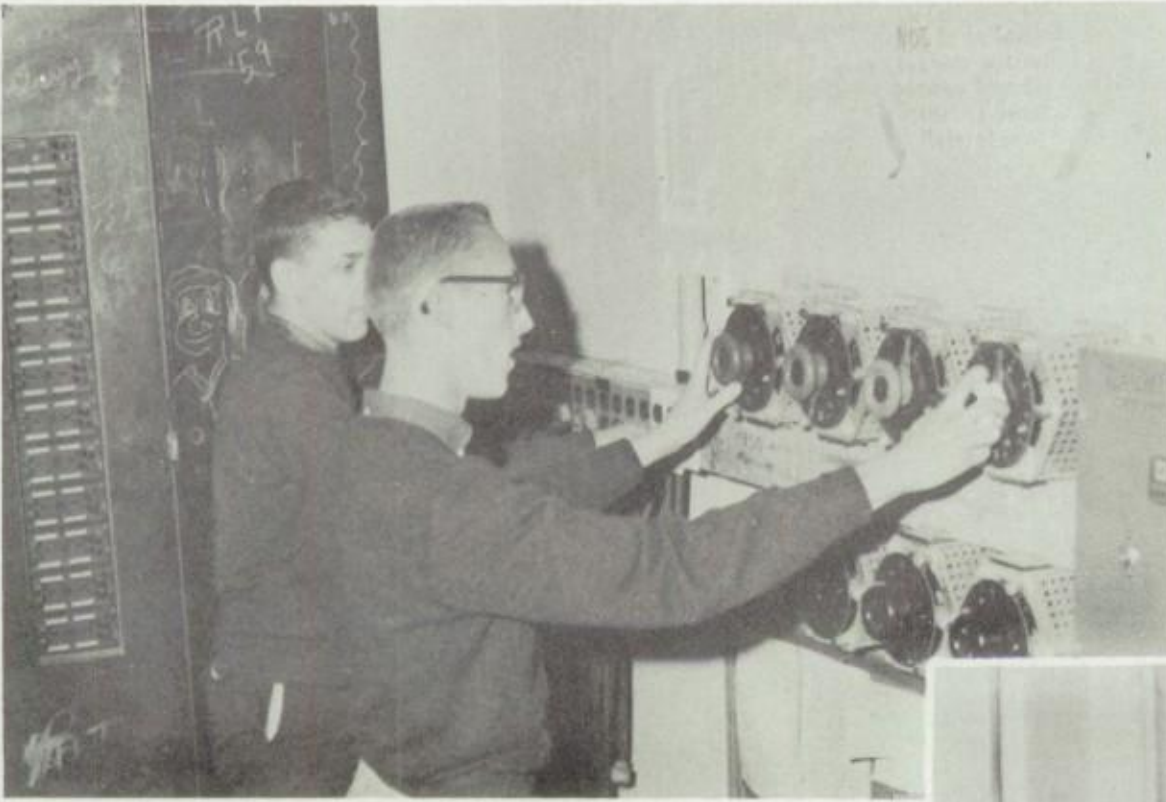

Mr. Bradley addresses the club on the use of a tripod. Members shown are: Owens, Heubeck, J. Mitcherling, Connelly, Von Eiff, W. Mitcherling, Plank, W. Kenney, Herr, Gisriel (standing), Brown, Marcher, C. Hiebler (standing), Cochran, Sincock, Starkey, Rukle.

Loyola Actors Sweep Contest Trophies

Bishop and Diegleman check the lights before the curtain goes up.

Make-up man Conery prepares Brennan for his entrance. He appeared in Murder in the Snow, one of the one-act plays staged in November.

For the fourth straight year Loyola's Dramatic Society finished first in the Jesuit Province One Act Play Contest. Edward Slawski, moreover, was named best actor in the contest.

In the three years he has directed the plays, Mr. Leo A. Murray, S.J., has seen Loyola's entries win the huge trophy twice and tie for its possession once. Loyola began the string with a victory in 1955.

The prize winning entry, Eugene O'Neill's In The Zone, was chosen from among three plays produced in November.

Scenes from Shakespeare's Julius Caesar and The Merchant of Venice were presented to the students in February.

The final play, in April, was a production of the comic melodrama Stalag 17.

Stage crew completes preparations for the One-Act-Play Contest: McClure, Bauernschub, Bishop, Michini, Diegleman.

Shopkeeper (Leonhart) informs Jester (Gately) of the merits of their agreement. This is a scene from Two Blind Men and a Donkey, one of three plays produced in October.

Mr. Murray, S.J. speaks to the Dramatics Society assembled on the set of In the Zone. The Society presented six one-act plays (on six occasions), and the full-length Stalag 17.

Three Revellers (Riddell, Simms and Tunney) carouse in the tavern. This play was directed by a senior, Tom Ireton, and was among the three presented in February.

Portia (Lupton) lectures on "the quality of mercy" as Antonio (Alessi) and Shylock (Lawrence) fight for the "pound of flesh" in The Merchant of Venice, staged in February.

Slawski reads a letter to the angered crew: Rosensteel, Ireton and Freiert. O'Neill's In the Zone, produced in October, was Loyola's prize-winning entry in the (December) Jesuit Province Play Contest. Later it was presented at Towson State Teachers College.

In Murder in the Snow, Brennan and Alessi capture Ricer, with an assist from Phelan.

Debaters Re-enter City Forensic League

Mr. Winters, S.J., and Mr. Whalen, S.J., discuss the program of scheduled debates.

1959 marked Loyola's re-entry into the Catholic Forensic League. For the first time since 1956 the Senior debaters took part in city and National tournaments.

The national topic, the advisability of compulsory unionism (the controversial Right-to-Work laws), required much preliminary research. Later, in the music room, Ed Slawski, Tom Scheye, Bill Freiert, Ed Conery, Paul Montgomery and Richard Lawrence pounded out the brief to be used. These sessions often roared on for hours.

Loyola placed third in their first city-wide tournament. Later, preparing for the Forensic League Tournament in March, they travelled, with their moderator, Mr. Francis X. Winters, S.J., to debate teams in Washington and Philadelphia.

O'Donnell, Langmeade, L. Simms and Miller ascertain material for a debate.

Millholland and O'Shea prepare to refute the arguments of Connelly and Burgan under the chairmanship of Giblin.

Conery and Freiert take notes on Slawski's speech, as his teammate, Scheye, and chairman, Zetlmeisl, are held spellbound.

Conery, Slawski, Freiert, and Scheye have trouble agreeing on their arguments for the local tournament.

Enlarged Annual Marks School Jubilee

Freiert gives pointers on salesmanship to members of the Business Staff: Price, T. O'Keefe, McInnes, Patrick, Rudolph, Doyle, Muth and Anton.

Thursday morning sees Freiert and Heegan taking receipts from Buehler, Welsh, O'Donnell and Fohner.

It was nearly midnight, December 29. The phone was ringing. It was one of our worried parents, wondering why his son had not returned from Loyola.

The answer is given in the Masthead. The son was one of us — the editors of the Yearbook and December 29 was the night before a deadline. It was not the first or the last day we remained very late.

We began totally inexperienced. We met the new moderator, Mr. Thomas D. Masterson, S.J., as he explained the in's and out's (and dollar-worries) of yearbooks. The editors were appointed in September. Long, occasionally heated discussions hammered out decisions: to increase the size, to cut down the Seniors, Classes and Faculty sections in favor of Activities and Sports, to invest in a special cover. Then each of us took blank sheets and began to design and plan. Questions bombarded moderator and printer. Waste baskets filled with rejected ideas but our precious leather folder gradually filled with finished page plans.

Planning pictures, writing copy, learning a whole new vocabulary of printer's terms, we watched deadlines approach. Somehow the mountains of final details were erased and the results — far from perfect — "went to press".

The Business Staff simply raised the needed money without benefit of ads, sponsors or patrons. Simply that! Nothing more need be said.

Conery, Scheye, Mr. Masterson, S.J., and Penn work late to meet deadline.

Due to the growing interest in the study of Russian, a Russian Club has been formed. As Russian is not taught at Loyola, meetings are necessarily like classes. Mr. Andrew J. McCormack teaches fundamental grammar and vocabulary, and homework is assigned. A core of about 20 have attended regularly.

It is expected that Russian will eventually be included in the curriculum.

The German Club provides an enjoyable means to a profitable end. By such informal methods as singing German songs, watching German newsreels, and going to a German restaurant, members of the German Club improve their knowledge of German.

This year, under the direction of Mr. G. Richard Dimler, S.J., the club has increased its membership and the range of its activities. At the weekly meetings members rocked the rafters with the Schnitzelbank or Deutschland Uber Alles. Guest lecturers were invited to talk on aspects of German and Germany.

The clubs' entry in the Christmas Show was their impressions of World War II.

"Eisbein Mit Sauerkraut is tasty," suggests Mr. Dimler, S.J., to Pisarski, Blair, Kyper, Lawrence, Seechuk, Montgomery, Hildebrandt, Kohlhepp.

Casey and Skovera try their hand at Russian conversation.

Language Groups Now Include Russian

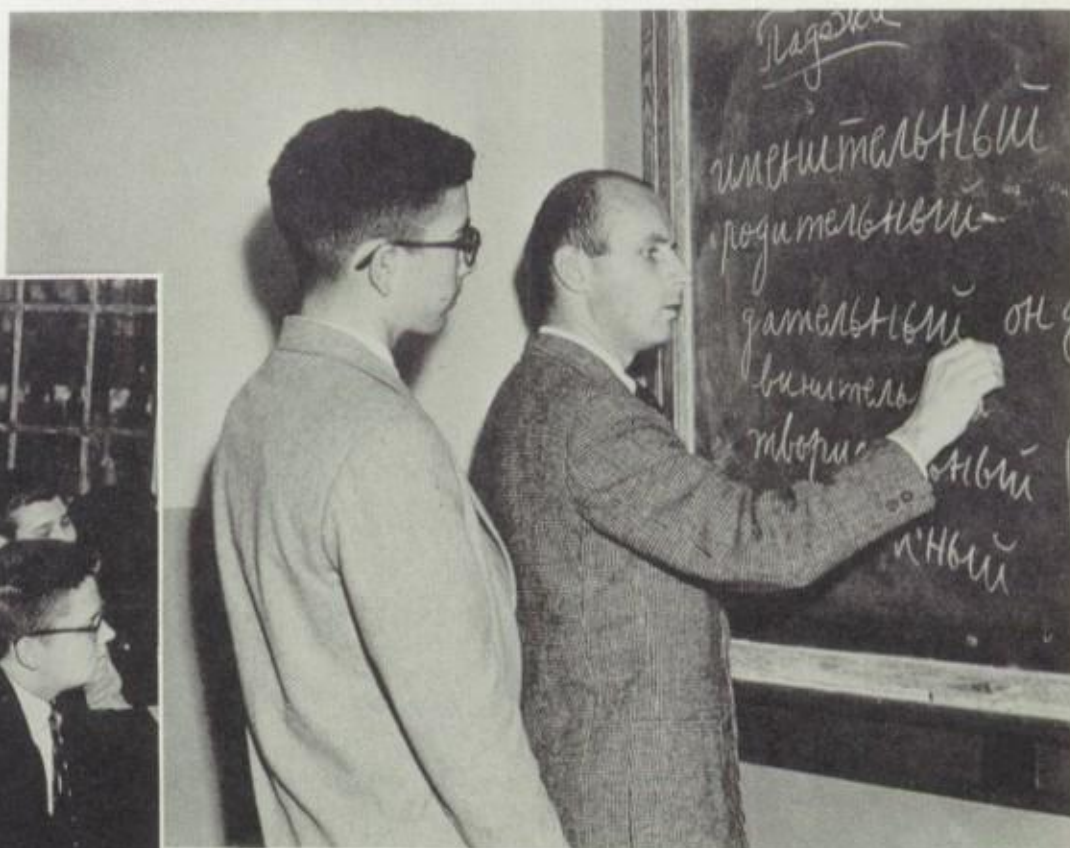

The batallion marches forward. This was the German Club's entry in the Christmas Show: Shehan, Bishop, Carfine, Gately, Ramos.

Mr. Dimler, S.J., leads the Schnitzlebank: Brown, Siemek, Gigliotti, Gately, Bollinger, Leonhart.

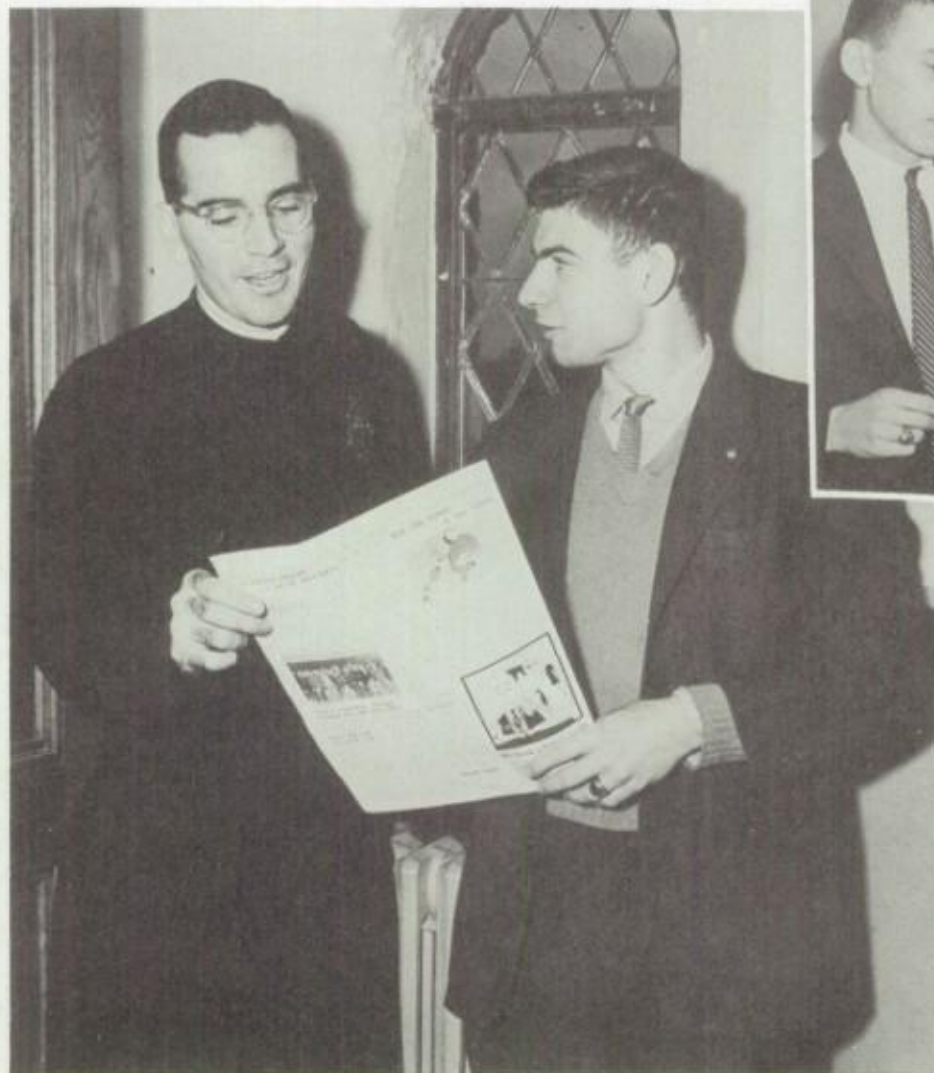

Mr. McCormick explains Russian phrases to Pala.

Russian Club members appear happy with explanation of fundamental grammar.

Paper, Magazine Record School Events

Mr. O'Neill, S.J., and Murray Bradley examine the latest edition.

The newspaper staff works to meet its deadline: Bishop, Michini, Petri, Brennan, Bradley, Phillips, Kenney (sitting in foreground), Mr. O'Neill, S.J.

Seeking to add more interest to the school newspaper, the Loyolan, the moderators, Mr. John F. Keating, S.J. and Mr. Joseph P. O'Neill, S.J., along with Murray Bradley, the editor, added several editorial and feature articles.

A sports editorial was added, and increased editorial comment could be found on the second page. The Distinguished Don feature honored a Senior who had excelled in studies, sports or extra-curricular activities. Another new column, Questionable Quotes, was a "man-on-the-street" column consisting of students' answers to challenging questions (e.g. "What do you think of Jug?")

The paper featured two scoops in its coverage of school activities: revealing the new student council president and giving the first details of the additions to the gym.

Characterizing each edition was editorial support for the athletic teams and attempts to unify the players and the student body.

Michini, Bradley, and Phillips fold the paper for circulation.

Mr. Keating, S.J., and Ed Slawski look over the layouts for the Blue and Gold.

The winter edition of the Blue and Gold, Loyola's literary magazine, was mainly a series of impressions telling the big and little events of the year as a Loyolan sees them.

Also featured were the prize winning short stories of Junior Joseph Metz and of the Sophomore twins Dennis and Gordon Henderson.

Such was the content of a typical issue. Planners included editors Ed Slawski, Bill Freiart, and Tom Scheye and moderators Mr. John F. Keating, S.J. and Mr. Joseph P. O'Neill, S.J.

Parents, Alumni Raise Almost $30,000

Mrs. Derr, president of The Mothers Club is welcomed by Mr. Bollinger and Mr. Von Eiff at a Fathers Club Ladies' Night.

Mr. Menton and Mr. Cummins pose with the M.S.A. Basketball trophy won in their days at Loyola.

During the past year, the parents and alumni of Loyola contributed nearly $30,000. Part of this sum helped finance both additions to the gym and scholarships for boys which required $15,000.

The Mothers Club sponsored their annual Easter Monday Dance, which, last year, raised $18,600. Parent-Teacher Interviews were held monthly. Another group of mothers met each week to make and repair vestments and altar linens.

The Oyster Roast, sponsored by the Fathers Club in October, filled the gym and cafeteria. At monthly meetings, the 50-50 raffles raised the fathers' donations to $8,000. Guest speakers at these meetings included members of the Colts and the Orioles, Fr. Myer F. M. Tobey, S.J., chaplain of the Maryland State Penitentiary, and Fr. John J. Scanlan, S.J., professor at Loyola College.

The Alumni held several dances at Loyola, as well as their annual dance at the Lord Baltimore Hotel. Other activities were the General Reunion and the Memorial Mass, held in the spring.

Don linemen close in for the kill. Defensive play of this kind was decisive throughout the season, especially in the City and Mt. St. Joe games.

Loyola's backfield often was acclaimed as the best in the area by local sportswriters, averaging as much as 5 yards per carry behind fine blocking.

The end of a championship season. In appreciation for his fine coaching, the team carries Mr. Mehr from the field after the Calvert Hall clash.

Dons Capture M.S.A., Catholic Titles

On August 22, a group of aspiring boys appeared at Blakefield for summer practice. Practice became tougher, the sun hotter throughout September until the final week of preparation for the opening game.

A 13-6 loss to St. Joe's Prep was attributed to first game mistakes, and was followed by two weeks of intensive drills. A strong Gonzaga team was surprised, 21-0. Victory did not ease practice because City, rated as the best by the local papers, loomed next on the list. After the dust was settled by a downpour, the Dons emerged the victors, 14-12. Another Washington eleven, Georgetown, fell 25-20.

The quest for the Maryland Scholastic Association championship started with easy 27-0 and 33-6 victories over Gilman and the Cadets of McDonogh. Football fever reached its height before the Mt. St. Joe tilt. Three titles were in sight after a 21-13 win over the Gaels. Finally, M.S.A. and Catholic laurels were brought to Blakefield by a hard-fought but decisive triumph over Calvert Hall, 19-0.

Pierce, Lambdin, and Chesmore about to down a Cardinal for a 2 yard loss. Don's first string yielded only 7 scores throughout season.

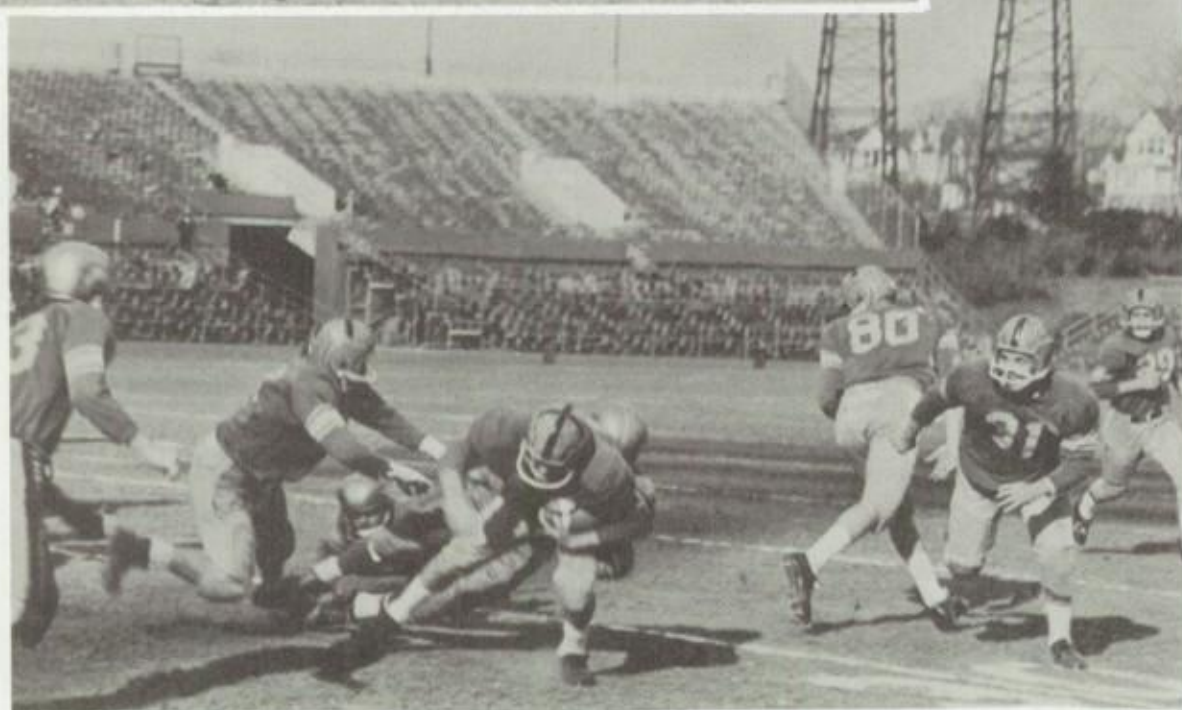

"We're the champs. Clearly and decisively we have done the job and proved ourselves the best. Football seasons will go on and on at Loyola and the Dons of '58 will be forgotten, their performances overshadowed; but winning as we have won is something we shall never forget. The lessons we have learned, our experiences gained — these will remain with us, for they are a part of every one of us.

"To all of Loyola we offer our thanks. Certainly our parents we can never repay. To our coaches and to our team doctor for their example and undying will to win, we shall ever be grateful. Through their efforts we have won the M.S.A. title, but there is still another "M.S.A." which should be ours for life: Manliness, Sacrifice, Accomplishment."

— The 1958 Football Team

Snyder picks up another 5 yards around end before being tackled. He averaged better than eight yards per carry during the season.

Jim Amrein bulls up the middle for 3 tough yards before being brought down by a host of cards.

Private League Won By J. V.

Two of last year's Varsity players, back Vic Corbin and guard Mike Buchness, returned to pilot this year's Junior Varsity team. After a slow start, the J.V.'s came into their own, winning the Private School League title. Tied only by a strong Severn team, they went undefeated in regular season competition, upsetting a favored McDonogh eleven in the scheduled finale.

Having won the right to play Edmondson's J.V. for the M.S.A. title, the Junior Dons found themselves outclassed by the heavier and older Public School champs. The Junior Redskins, whose school had no Varsity team this year, inflicted the first loss of the season, 26-6.

The outstanding player on this Loyola squad which bettered all expectation, was Henry Blaha, Frosh back, who scored most of the season's points.

J.V. defender drags down enemy ball carrier.

Almost, but not quite. J.V. Don slips away from would-be St. Joe tackler.

"Hit 'em high, hit 'em low." Down comes a Gilman back after short gain.

Mike Gardner makes a lay-up between Dunbar defenders. Two last-minute losses to the eventual M.S.A. champs ruined Don chances of defending their title.

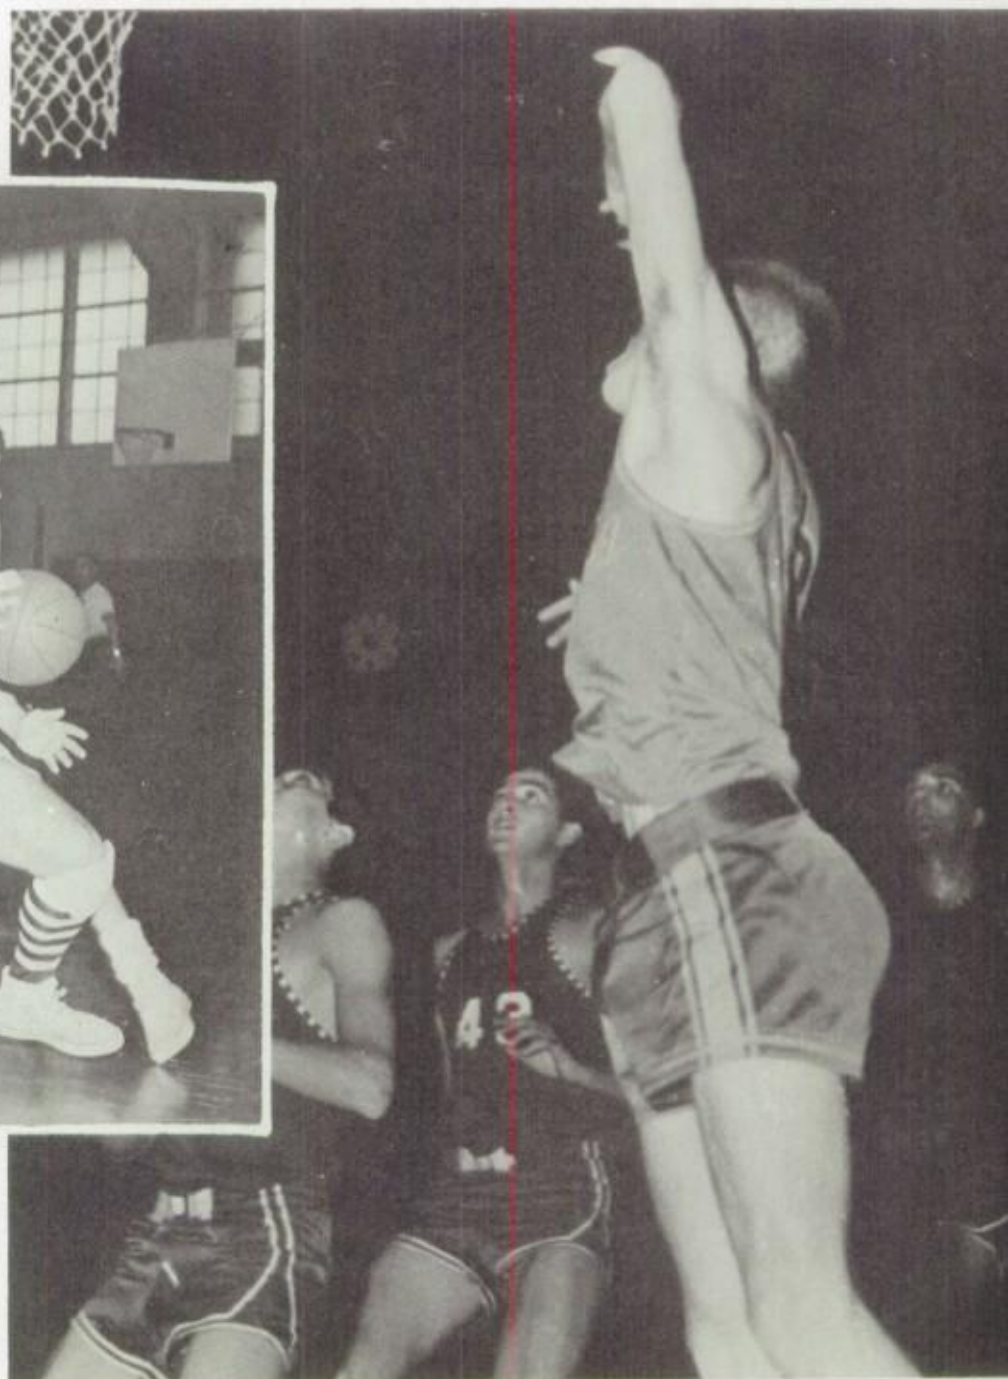

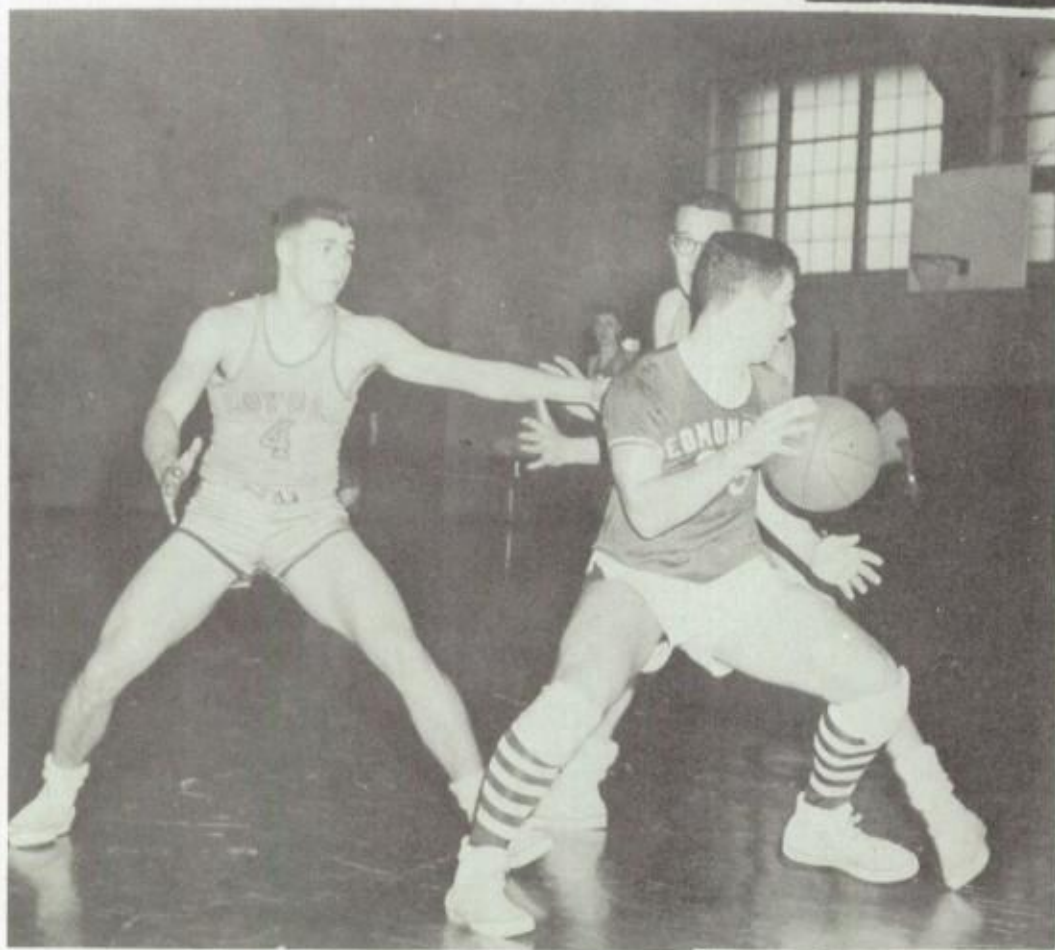

Russ Miller waits for tap after jump against Glen Burnie. Russ, a key play-maker, averaged 14.4 points per game in leading Don scorers with 331.

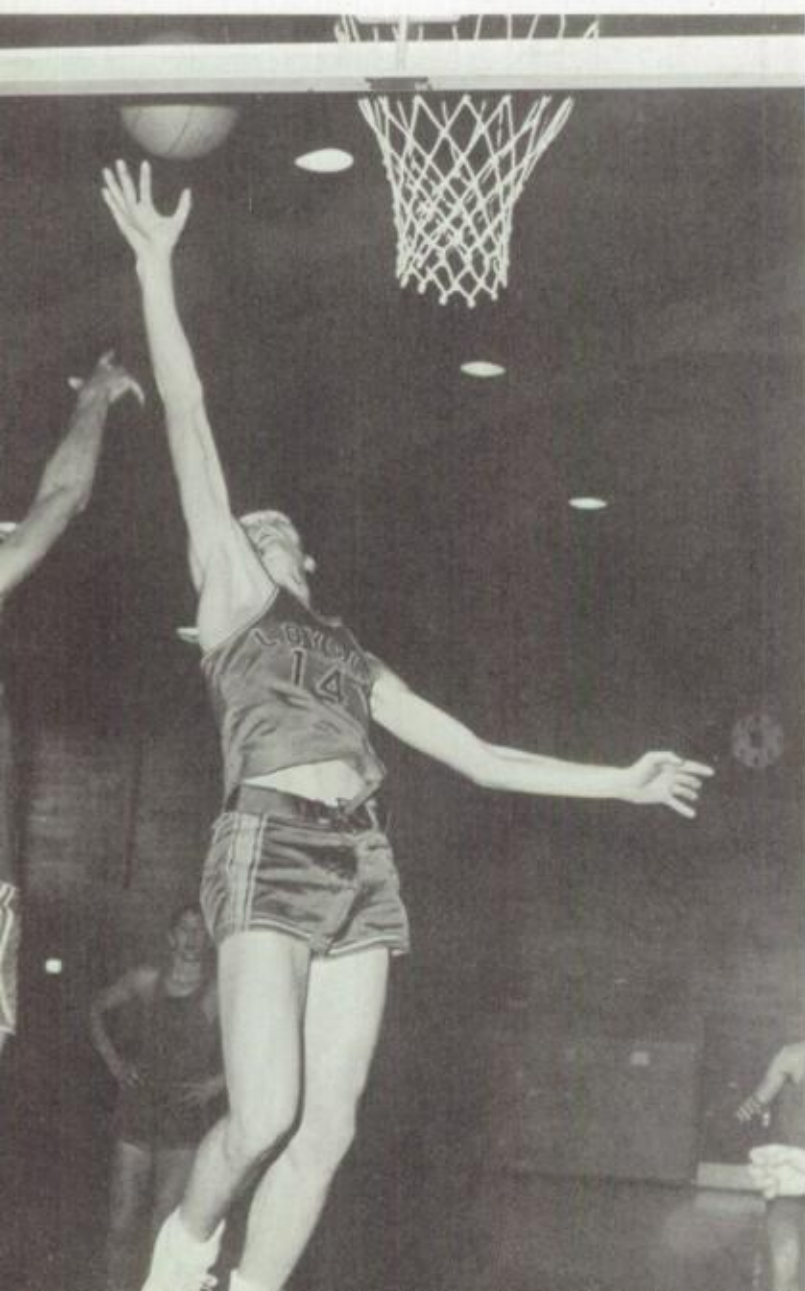

Burton and Burns fight for the ball against Carver. Burns, sorely missed in the first Carver loss due to a knee injury, played his finest game against De Matha when he scored 12 points in one minute of play.

Dons Finish 4th in M.S.A. with 5 Losses

Freshman Henry Blaha and Junior Snuffy Smith surround Edmondson dribbler. Blaha played in 20 quarters, and collected 14 points and 14 rebounds.

Alex Cummins sinks one-handed jump-shot as Edmondson defenders stand by helplessly. Loyola won, 68-51.

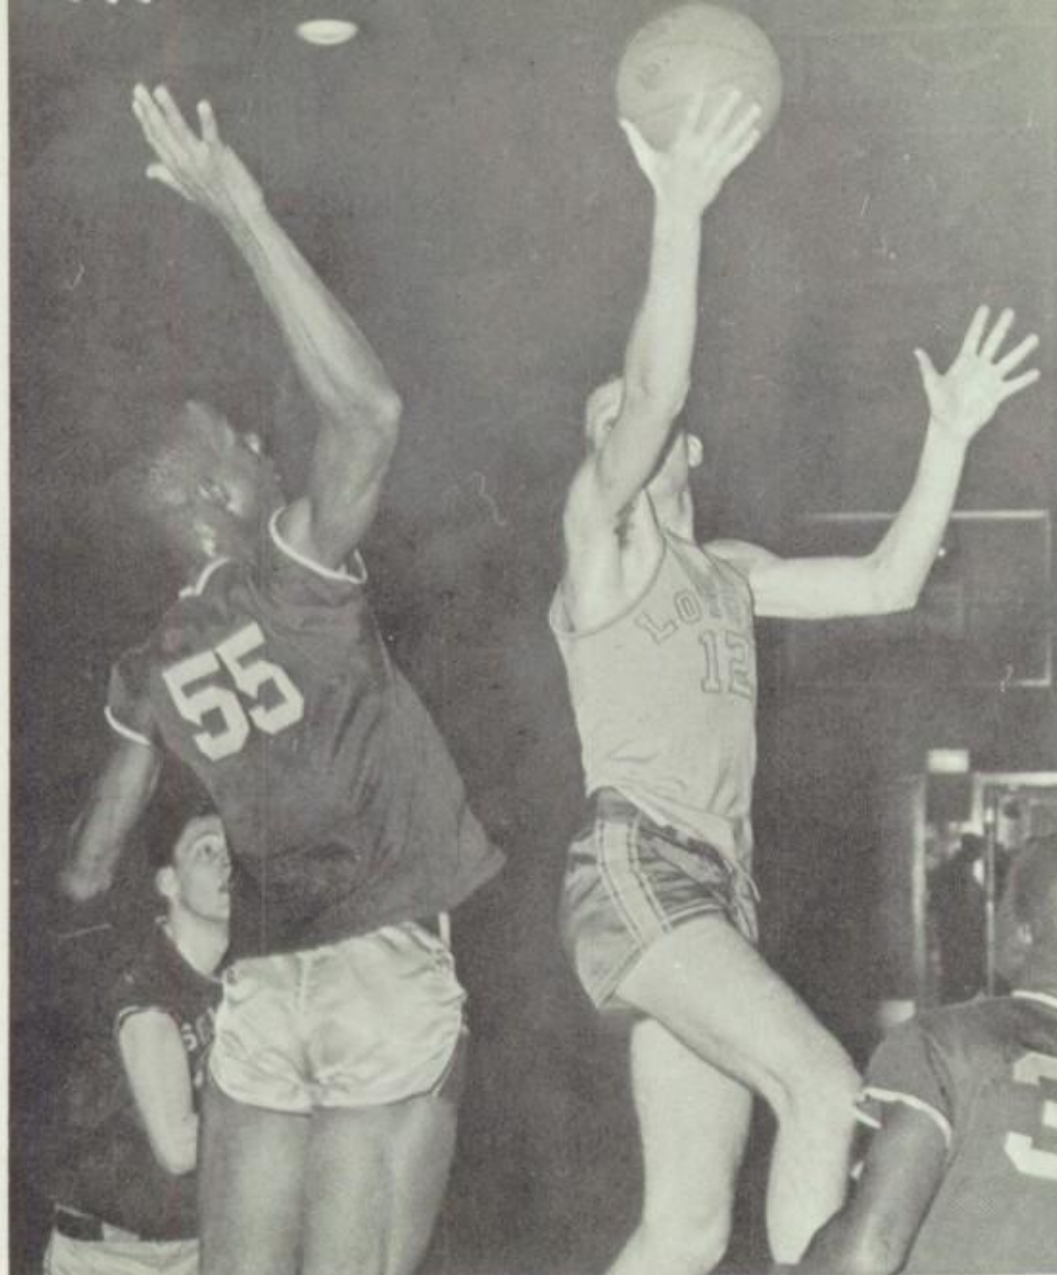

Successfully defending the Catholic Championship, but finishing fourth in their M.S.A. division, Loyola's 1959 Basketball team won 17 games and lost 9. In the Baltimore-Washington Catholic League they were runners-up

Pre-season favorites because of height and experience, the Dons suffered crucial losses to Dunbar, City, and Carver. Sickness and early fouling-out of key players hurt them. A last-second loss to Dunbar all but ended title hopes.

Raising their game scoring average to 67.2, the Dons clinched the Catholic title with four wins in the second half of the season, and upset league-leading City. Their 99 total against Forest Park was an area record for the season.

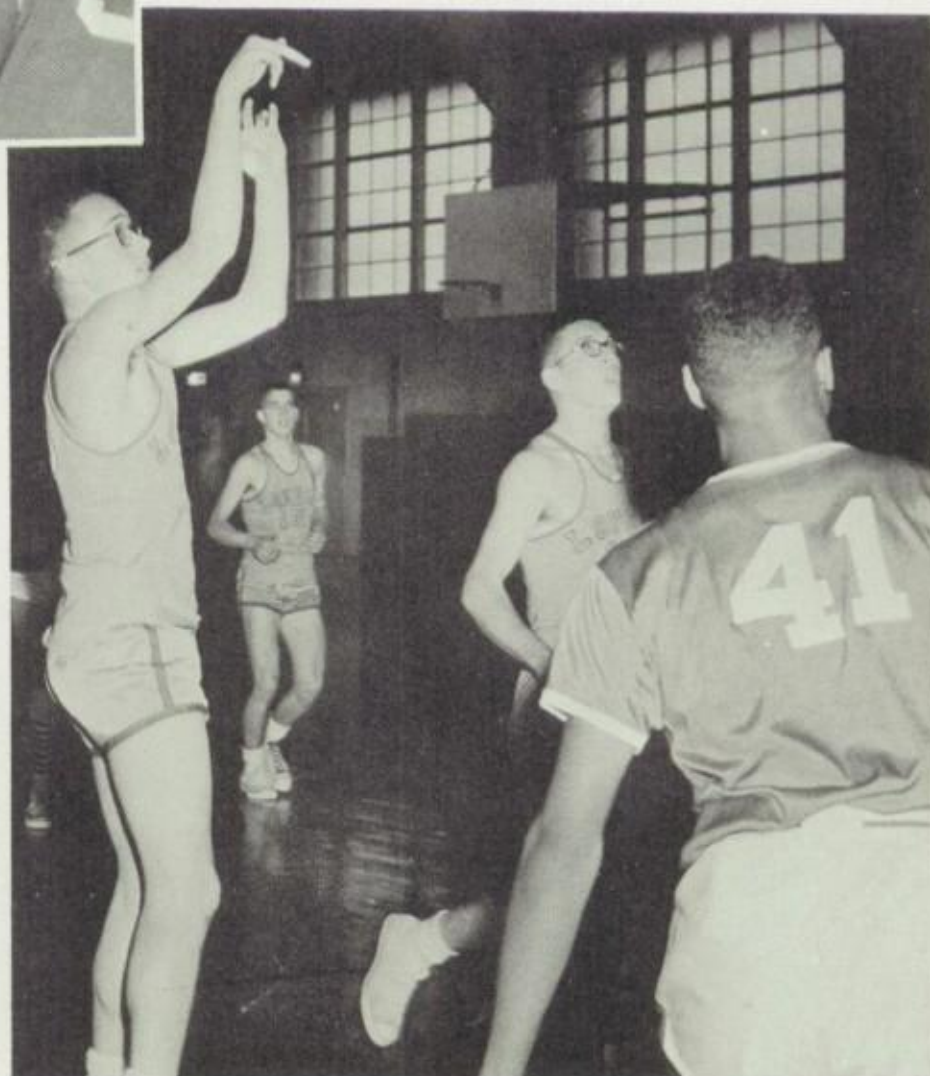

Gardner goes up and over Glen Burnie cager for lay-up and two more points. Mike, named on the News-Post Division II team (first string), averaged 12.4 points per game and amassed 260 rebounds,

Jody Satterfield's patented underhand lay-up. Jody, with 20, was high scorer in this early-season 77-50 rout of the unbeaten Bulldogs. As floor leader during the last half of the season, Jody brought his scoring total to 315 and was on the second string of the News-Post Division II All-Stars.

Joe Franz out-jumps Card player in 67-60 win over arch-rival Calvert Hall. Loyola won the rematch, 76-55. Franz was considered by local papers as one of the area's two best Sophomores.

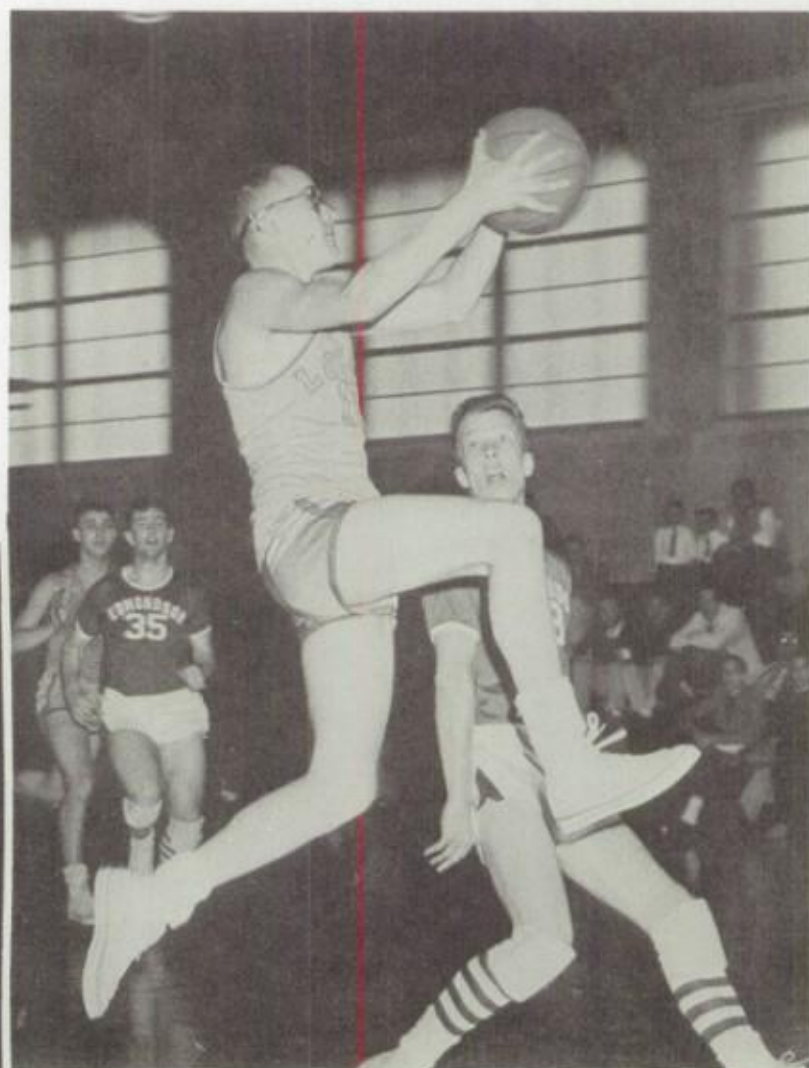

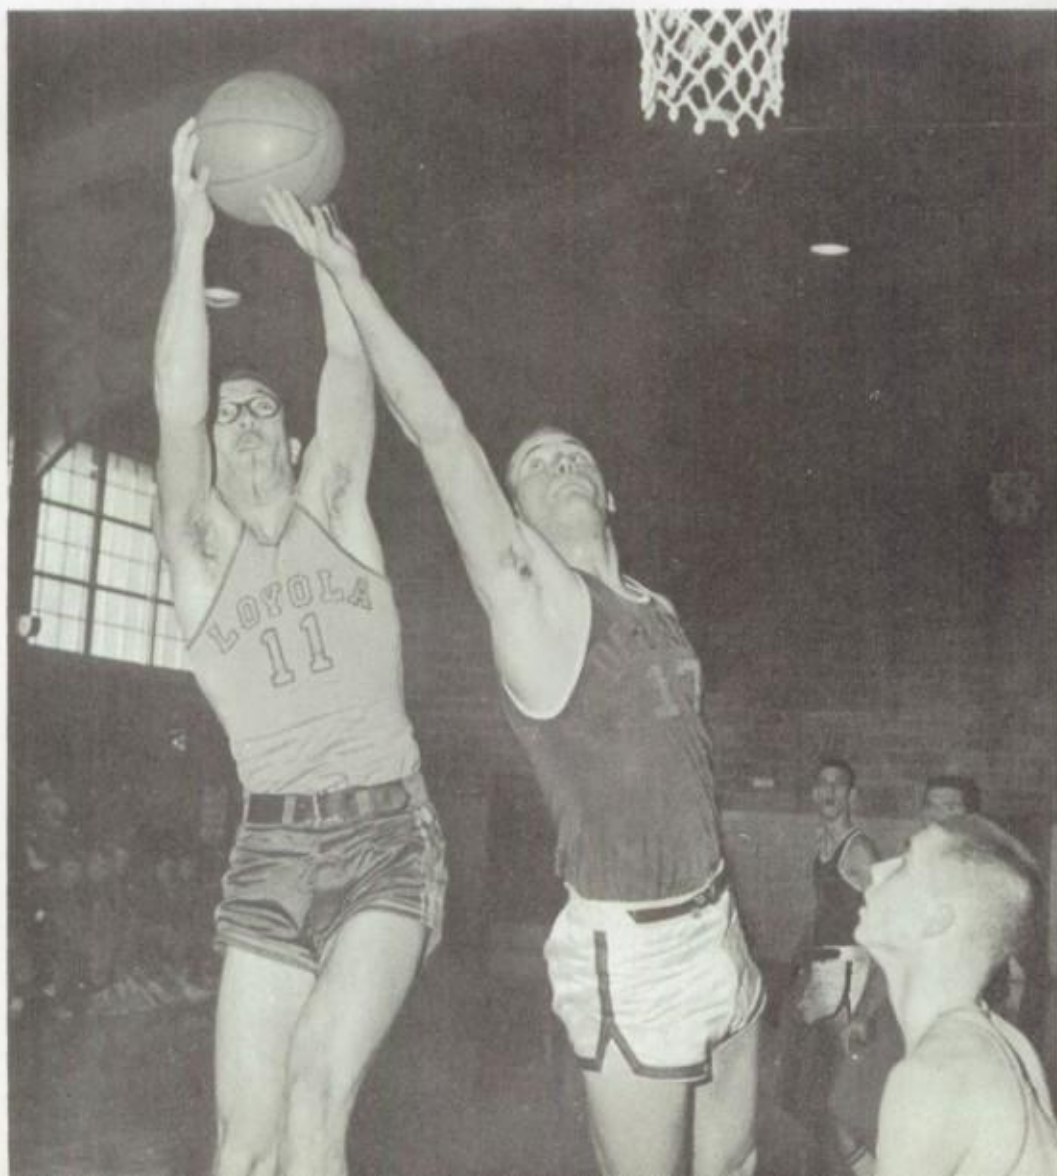

Smith sinks jumper as Schwarz and Carew look on. The reserves saw much action as the Dons won their 17 games by an average of 20 points. The subs scored 188 points.

Team Averages 67.2 Points Each Game

Conclusion

This was Blakefield, 1959 — her Silver Anniversary year. It is now part of her history. Before and after, Loyola's years come and go. We have recorded one: the events, the faces, the words. In doing so, we have paused a bit to consider what pattern emerges from the years, what — if anything — remains to justify the efforts of so many, as the faces come and go.

What do remain are Loyola's ideals and traditions. In recording this last year of her first quarter-century at Blakefield, we have noted and saluted them. We now leave them behind us, as they were left to us. Ad Multos Annos!
